NEWS OF THE DAY.

—Congress seems to be getting down to work.

—The situation of Servia seems to be a bad one.

—The grasshoppers have commenced a vigorous campaign in Minnesota.

—It is Senator Blaine now—his membership in the House having been terminated yesterday.

—Governor Hayes' letter meets with universal favor among the Republican and Independent press.

—Minnie Sherman Fitch has those diamonds, and the dresses to match are already under consideration. Lieutenant, our sympathies. We can see no relief unless you hire a burglar.—Rochester Democrat.

—The news comes from New Hampshire that the hotels at the mountains are, as usual, employing for waiters girls belonging to some of the best familes of New Hampshire and Vermont, and they make themselves useful not only in the dining-room, but in the parlors, entertaining guests.

—Highway robbery as performed in Missouri, within fifty miles of the State capital, is on a scale suited to the requirements of modern progress, and includes the stoppage of a railway train, breaking the express safes with a pickax and departure of the masked robbers with $16,000 of plunder. Some little change in the conditions of society in that State would, however, seem desirable before the National capital is removed thither.

—Lookout Mountain is now a popular summer resort, 8,000 people having registered at the hotels during the season. A writer says: "At the first curve of the road, after leaving the valley way, the famous battle-field was visible. This is now overgrown with luxuriant young oaks and other kinds of trees, and nothing of its one-time grimness remains but the long, irregular line of mound work that denotes the locality of a shorn breastwork."

—It is probably safe to say that the campaign against the Sioux is very nearly over for the summer. It will take time to get our troops in condition for new offensive movements, and though Sitting Bull has undoubtedly suffered severe losses, yet he has victory to cheer him on and invite new allies, while our forces are more or less demoralized by defeat. The campaign is likely to last through the winter and into next summer, if not longer.

—The Czar too sends his congratulations. They are a little late in coming, but not the less welcome. The Czar's government is not much like ours, but he is an enlightened as well as an able ruler, and it was he who gave one of the most remarkable proofs the world has ever had of the influence of the Declaration of Independence in his edict emancipating the serfs. All Americans will join with him in the hope "that the friendship of the two countries may increase with their prosperity."

—The labor question in England has again become one of serious importance. Trade must be depressed indeed when not only reduced wages and reduced time, but a limit of four working days in the week, are determined upon. Whether such reductions are justifiable or not their effects cannot fail to be most deplorable. At the present rates the condition of English operatives is not a happy lot. With reduced wages, and only four days in the week to earn even this, no fate could be much worse than is likely to befall them. Depressed as everything is with us we have not yet fallen so low as the condition of things in England.

—The sentiment of the Press, representing the people, is thus put into a nut shell "We have temporized and we have suffered. Crook barely escaped and Custer lies a victim. The lesson has been a costly one; it should be read aright. We sorrow for the dead already fallen; we dread the casualties that must come, but we entreat those who have the power, to make this summer's campaign a decisive one. Let there be no stint of treasure and no lack of men, even if we must recruit an army as large as the census of the foe; we must act with such vigor that their recent bloody victories shall not encourage and inflame these savages to the general destruction of the weak and defenceless wherever found.

—Perhaps, some ages hence, when common sense shall be a recognized factor in social life, our descendants may meet the more than tropical summer with open throats and loose sleeves, may walk the streets in wide trousers, and dine in linen jacket. If this should ever come to pass, we may also expect that the laborer will wear a cabbage-leaf in his hat and postpone his whisky until frost comes; that every street and alley will be kept so clean that the city Government will sigh for their vanished smells; that babies will no longer be taken on long railroad journeys; and that Congress, after having carefully and honestly provided for the expenses of the Government, will adjourn before the Fourth of July!

—Mr. Blaine accepts the place of United States Senator and the Repulican party in the House of Representatives loses a leader whom no emergency ever called upon in vain. In the graver duties to which he will be called in his new post, Mr. Blaine will find much needed rest; and after a time, will take the high place among his colleagues, deserved by his acquirements of intellect and his experience of statesmanship. The antagonistic spirit exhibited towards him in the lower house will find less expression in the Senate; but even Senators are human, so we may find some exhibition of the old fire and audacious courage which has carried Mr. Blaine to the very first place in the American heart.

—Mr. Julian Hawthorne writes a letter from London to the Tribune strongly condemning his brother-in-law, G. P. Lathrop, for writing and publishing his book called "A Study of Nathaniel Hawthorne." He accuses him of improperly obtaining and retaining private papers, the contents of which Mrs. Hawthorne and the family wished to guard sacredly, and extracts from which were used in making the book, which is a biography although called only "A Study." Mr. Julian Hawthorne says that in writing this book Mr. Lathrop "was attempting a work which no member of Mr. Hawthorne,s family would have ventured to undertake, even had Mr. Hawthorne's last wishes not forbidden it." There are many more severe things in the letter, but the book is out and controversy about it will only advertise it and increase its sale.

—A correspondent of the Cleveland Plain Dealer gives the following sketch of the Republican candidate for Vice President: "Mr. Wheeler is a large, powerfully built man, standing very erect when speaking. His hair is growing very gray. It is always combed with scrupulous care; always thrown back from a high square forehead, under whose heavy brows there are very observant eyes. He wears no mustache; the jaws are as square as the outlines of the forehead, and the whole face is expressive of earnest thought when in repose, but I have seen it soften and brighten, when some friend has accosted him, till Mr. Wheeler grew really handsome. The death of his wife last winter was a sad loss; one that he will feel keenly now, when he thinks how she would have rejoiced in his honor. She was a noble woman, dearly loved by all who knew her."

—A very well informed correspondent at Ems sends us the following curious information, which he insists upon as being entirely accurate: Herr Buchner, Bismarck's right-hand man, has been under a nom de plume at Ems and Jugenheim, daily closeted with the Czar Gortschakoff, is making every exertion to secure Prussia, and is willing to give France up. The only question in dispute is the guarantee to be given by Russia that she will forgoe France and back Germany in the future war with France. Germany feels she must do one of two things—come to an arrangement with Russia or England. The Emperor prefers the Russian alliance, and when the opinion of Moltke and Falkenstein was asked they replied that no guarantee from Russia would be sufficient without an occupation of the Russian frontier by German troops. This they proposed could be effected by goading Austria into a war by means of exciting the Magyars and Slays, and fomenting disturbances in Galicia and Poland, whereupon Germany would mass her forces on the frontier, especially at Nystoalk, the key to Russian Poland. This Prussian-Russian alliance would mean destruction to Austria and the postponement sine die of the French war.

—The Cumberland (Md:) Daily News gives this bit of history: "Of the numerous obituaries and biographies of the late Gen. George A. Custer that have been published in the newspapers, few have given the place of his birth, and none, so far as we have seen, any account of his ancestors. This omission we think we can supply, as Gen. Custer's ancestors were citizens of this county. Fifty years ago there lived at Cresaptown, about six miles west of this city, John Cresap, a blacksmith, who had three or four sons, who, as they reached manhood, went into business for themselves, and all but one, we believe, lived and died in this county. This was Emmanuel, father of Gen. Custer. About for years ago Emmanuel Custer removed from this county to Ohio, then the far west—and settled at New Rumley, Harrison county, whence young Custer was appointed to West Point by Hon. John A. Bingham. Some persons in this county think that Emmanuel Custer married in this county and that General Custer was born here, but others think that Emmanuel left here before his marriage and that General Custer was born in Ohio. The Custer family have some relatives in this county, but we have been able as yet to find but one, Mr. Basil T. Garlitz, proprietor of the Centennial Hotel, of this city, whose aunt was John Custer's wife, and General Custer's grandmother."

FORTY-FOURTH CONGRESS.

FIRST SESSION.

WASHINGTON July 10, 1876.

SENATE.

Information Wanted.

Mr. EATON submitted a resolution directing the Secretary of War to report the number of troops in the Southern States, and location of each command. He asked present consideration, but Mr. Edmunds objecting the resolution went over.

Mr. EATON gave notice that he would call it up to-morrow.

The Impeachment Trial.

The Senate after discussing some routine business resumed the impeachment trial.

Whitelaw Reid was called and testified to the publication in the Tribune of an article complaining of rascalities at the Fort Sill tradership. Mr. McMahon, for the prosecution, wanted to ask him whether Belknap ever tried to find out who wrote the article—the object being to show that Belknap was never anxious to have any complaint investigated.

After a long discussion the Senate refused to allow the question to be asked.

Mr. Carpenter asked, as Gens. Sherman and Sheridan had to be in Chicago, that their depositions be taken, which was agreed to.

The counsel for the accused and managers agreed that it should be admitted that Gen. Sheridan would testify first, to the good character of the accused while Secretary of War, second to the Secretary of War referring to him (Sheridan) all applications to sell liquor at military posts, and adopted his report on such applications in every case.

Caleb P. Marsh was next called. He testified that he had destroyed the correspondence between himself and Belknap. He was then examined in detail concerning the meeting of himself and Mrs. Belknap and Mrs. Marsh, at West Point, but said the date was so distant that he could not remember much about it. As to the conversation which passed between him and Gen. Belknap when he paid money in person Marsh said they never had a conversation. Belknap always took the money, but they had no explanation of any kind, Belknap neither asking nor Marsh volunteering any information. He paid Mrs. Marsh one installment at the St. James Hotel, New York. After the Tribune article appeared he asked Belknap who he thought was instigator of the article, and he gave the name of Gen. Hazen. Witness said he presumed the Secretary knew where the money was coming from that was being paid him.

Witness made the first payment to Mrs. Belknap, now deceased, in November, 1870. He sent it to her by express. The package was addressed to Secretary Belknap. Inside was another package containing the money addressed to Mrs. Belknap.

The cross-examination of the witness was postponed until to-morrow.

Gen. Hazen was next put on the stand and testified that Belknap never asked him anything about the truth of the charges made by the Tribune. He (Hazen) had written several letters about these abuses. The letters ought to be on file in the War Department. On cross-examination the witness stated that he had written a letter to the Secretary of War in September, marked confidential, and said he was willing that the letter should be read. The letter was then produced and read by Gen. Hazen. It is very lengthy, entering into unimportant details, but in substance it is an apology to Gen. Belknap for the letter written by Hazen to Coburn, Chairman of the Committee on Military Affairs, relating to the operations of the suttler system. He explains how that letter was extorted from him, and charges the clerk of the committee, who was also a Tribune reporter, with publishing portions of his statement before the committee, and adding things to it which he never said. And in conclusion he details to Gen. Belknap the evils of the sutler system, and states that it was out of no disrespect to him that he had endeavored to have a change made, but for benefit of the troops, who were imposed upon by the sutlers.

Mr. Carpenter asked that Senate setting as a court of impeachment, &c., adjourn over till Wednesday to enable the defence to prepare their side, and he thought by such preparation he would be able to save the day to Senate in submitting the defence. Without deciding the request, the Senate resumed legislative business, and in a short time adjourned.

HOUSE.

Paying Expenses.

Mr. RANDALL reported a bill continuing for ten days the act defraying temporarily the ordinary and necessary expenses of the Government. Passed.

This is not the Senate bill on the same subject, but the original House bill.

The Indian War.

Mr. BANNING offered a resolution calling on the Secretary of War for information in regard to the object of the military expedition under Generals Terry, Crook and Gibbon, against the northwestern Indians, and for copies of all correspondence bearing on the origin of the expedition, and for copies of all military orders issued by the War Department directing the expedition. Adopted.

The Consular and Diplomatic Service.

Mr. RANDALL stated that in the Consular and Diplomatic bill of two years ago the Senate had increased the Consular and Diplomatic salaries, and the House now proposed to adopt the same course only in an opposite direction. In reply to a question he said the committee had not given much attention to the consular service. It was his opinion if the entire diplomatic service should fail for want of appropriations and the American Ministers were brought home, no material interests of the country would suffer.

Mr. KASSON—But the National honor would. I hope the gentleman does not propose to advertise our partisan discussions to every country in the world by the proposition to withdraw all our representatives abroad.

Mr. FOSTER, the Republican member of the Conference Committee, expressed his opinion that it was the determination of the House to humiliate the Senate and compel it to eat its own words. The Senate was willing to accept the amount of the appropriation, and he was sure that not a dollar beyond that amount would be expended.

Mr. RANDALL—The point is whether these officers would not have a claim.

Mr. FOSTER—They would not, because the President is to be authorized to reduce salaries, and to withdraw service.

Hoity, Toity, Gentlemen!

Mr. SINGLETON expressed the surprise he felt at hearing a gentleman (Foster) oppose in the House a proposition to which he had given his assent in committee.

Mr. FOSTER—When the gentleman makes that statement he misstates purposely.

Mr. SINGLETON—Do you mean to charge me with a lie.

Mr. FOSTER—I do, if the gentleman makes that statement, I say that that is absolutely untrue.

Mr. SINGLETON—Very well, sir, something can be said about that after a while.

Speaker pro tem.—Order, gentlemen, order.

At the close of the debate Mr. Foster, rising to a question of privilege, took back the insinuation that Mr. Singleton lied purposely, and Mr. Singleton accepted the apology, and both vowed their friendship for each other, and decided to let bygones be bygones.

The House then accepted the report and a new committee appointed, consisting of Messrs. Singleton, Springer and Monroe. The two latter are members of the Committee on Foreign Affairs.

Mr. Blaine Resigns.

The Speaker pro tem. laid before the House a telegraphic dispatch from the Governor of Maine, stating that Mr. Blaine having accepted the vacant Senatorship from that State, had resigned his seat as a member from this day.

Exposition Goods.

Mr. MORRISON presented a bill admitting free of duty all goods for the Exposition—the bill providing that such goods could be sold in this country without being subject to tax.

The Redemption Clause.

Mr. HOLMAN moved to suspend the rules and adopt a resolution instructing the Committee on Banking and Currency to report for consideration and amendment, a bill to repeal so much of the redemption act as provides for the redemption of United States notes with coin. Negatived 105 to 96, not two thirds in the affirmative.

Mr. HOLMAN then moved that when the House adjourns, it be till Wednesday next. Agreed to—99 to 88. Adjourned.

"Crooked Whisky" Dealers Sentenced.

MILWAUKEE, July 10.—Judge Dyer, in the U. S. Circuit Court to-day pronounced sentence in the whisky cases, as follows: Samuel Elias and Jacob Rindskopf, rectifiers, each one day's imprisonment in the county jail and a fine of $1,000; Leopold Wirth, distiller, six months' imprisonment and a fine of $1,000; Aaron Schoenfeld, distiller, five months' imprisonment and $1,000; William Bergenthal and Charles Grau, distillers, each four months' imprisonment and $1,000; Charles Aintz, distiller, three months' imprisonment and $200.

DON CARLOS.

On His Travels Through the United States.

Presence of the Spanish Pretender at the National Capital—Failure of an Attempted Incognita—The Prince Yields to the Irrepressible Interviewer—Object of His Visit to America—Views on the Carlist Question and the Condition of Europe.

WASHINGTON, July 9.—The arrival of Don Carlos here last night was known to but very few persons. He and his four travelling companions, all young Spanish noblemen of fortune and swells of the first water, were evidently very anxious that their identity should be concealed, for they registered at the Arlington Hotel under their private family names. Mr. Sheckles, of the Arlington, however, recognized Don Carlos at once, and when the latter saw that he was known he asked most earnestly that no cards or messages whatever should be sent to him.

"I do not know a soul here," he said in French, "and do not desire to see anybody, and to save everybody the mortification of a refusal I will take no cards."

For a man who wants to escape the irrepressible interviewer, however, Don Carlos adopted a strange mode of conduct. At noon, while the sun was at its hotest, he was comfortably seated in the cool lobby of the hotel. Two of his suite were sitting beside him, and the three were engaged in animated conversation, laughing and gesticulating as Spaniards are wont to do. Viewed from the clerk's desk, Don Carlos, as he sat there, only presented an outline of sallow cheek and heavy black mustache and goatee, while his companions were exceedingly good looging young men, dressed in the height of fashion.

Interview with the Prince.

"Bonjour, Prince," said your correspondent, when there was a lull in the conversation, who had been warned that Don Carlos did not speak a word of French, and he begged pardon for the interruption. Don Carlos desired to know who his interlocutor was, and when he was informed that he was a correspondent he rose politely and with great readiness entered into conversation. His companions, with perfect delicacy, not having been invited by the Prince to remain, withdrew at once. For some twenty minutes the conversation was then carried on standing, the first thing done by Don Carlos to put his visitor at ease being to offer him some cigarettes. During the whole colloquy Don Carlos kept puffing his cigar with great gusto.

His Personal Appearance.

Don Carlos, while standing, presented the appearance of a tall, somewhat slim, but yet heavily built man, of about thirty years or less, with good strong chest, lithe limbs, powerful shoulders and a long, oval face, whose sallow complexion betrayed at once his Southern nationality. His hair is of the blackest, but his eyes are reddish brown, large and with a prepossessing expression of openness. The features are decidedly large, the nose straight, long, full; the mouth sensuous and the chin peaked and of eloquent determination. There is nothing intellectual or commanding about the face, certainly nothing princely. It is the countenance of a rather good natured man of moderate intelligence, but considerable backbone and strength of character. The best feature of the face are the eyes. Don Carlos smiles very frequently while he speaks. He was dressed in a simple suit of Scotch gray, such as many a clerk at A. T. Stewart's would despise, but sported a gorgeous blue necktie. He wore two simple rings and silver coins as cuff studs.

Don Carlos' manner is exceedingly lively, and his gesticulation is incessant. Often he would tap your correspondent on the arms when calling his attention to some particular point he was making.

His American Trip.

"I arrived in Halifax," said he, speaking French, "went thence to Boston, from Boston to Chicago, down the Mississppi Valley to New Orleans, from New Orleans to Vera Cruz and thence to the city of Mexico. In Mexico I had a charming reception. The people fairly rivalled each other in heaping kindness upon me. They gave balls and receptions to my honor, and showed me every possible attention. I had determined to travel incognito through Mexico as I have through this country, but it was impossible—there were so many who knew me. I was the first Spanish Prince who had ever visited their shores, which probably accounts for their great kindness. I intended to visit Chili, Peru and the South American countries generally; but the amiability of the Mexican people made me lengthen my stay, so that I finally had no time left to finish my programme, but had to return to Europe."

"How soon do you intend to sail for Europe?"

"In about two weeks. I was going to tell you about my return trip hither. I went from Mexico to Vera Cruz, thence to New Orleans, and from New Orleans I came here by way of Richmond. The scenery all along the Potomac, which I viewed from the steamer, was superb, more especially Mount Vernon, with its beautiful historical associations. By the way, do you know that it is hotter here in Washington than it is down at New Orleans?"

"Yes, and probably you feel the heat more than you did even in Spain, Prince," the correspondent replied.

"Yes, I do," Don Carlos said, laughing. "I have enjoyed my trip through this country very much. It is full of interesting and instructive things. I am only sorry that I can make but such a flying visit, but I have to return home to my wife, where a joyful event awaits me."

This last announcement Don Carlos made with an expression of pleasure and pride. "I have already five children," said he, "and this will be the sixth."

Your correspondent remarked that Don Carlos looked remarkably youthful.

"I married when I was eighteen," said he, laughingly, "and I am now twenty-eight."

The Reason for His Visit.

His attention being called to the stories that had appeared in print that he had come to America for the purpose of establishing a throne in Mexico or Cuba, Don Carlos said, with some indignation, mingled with amusement, that this was a great betise (foolishness); that he only came to America for instruction and pleasure, and that such a thought had never entered his mind. The imputation of disloyalty to Spain seemed to wound him, and he declared that no true Spaniard would desire for a moment that Cuba should be torn from Spain or that the Spanish Empire should be thus dismembered.

"I am a Spaniard before anything else," he replied, proudly. "There is no difference between Spaniards. Whether we are Monarchists or Republicans, Alfonsists or Carlists, we should all spurn to rob Spain's diadem of its most precious jewel. Besides," he added, "I am not in search of a throne. I only claim that which rightfully belongs to me," and with significant buoyancy, he exclaimed, "To attain that throne I have by no means given up hope."

"The war is over?" the correspondent remarked interrogatively.

"For the present," Don Carlos returned, significantly.

"For many years, I suppose?"

In a tone, the deep significance of which it was impossible to misunderstand, he said, after a pause of silence:—

"That depends on circumstances."

The correspondent asked Don Carlos, without pressing the question, as to the continuance of the war any further, what he thought of the Present Condition of Spain.

"It is very unsettled," he replied, "but this much seems to be clear—that Alfonso cannot maintain himself long on the Spanish throne. Spain seems to drift toward a republic just now."

"A republic after Castelar's model, Prince?" I asked.

"Not so moderate, I should think. You see Castelar is a man of great boldness of thought, but little boldness of deed. He proclaims grand doctrines of political liberty, but when he comes into power he does not possess the force to carry them into execution."

The Condition of Europe.

From Spain the conversation reverted to the political condition of Europe. "I think there is just now great danger of a great conflagration in the East," said he. "The East is like a powder magazine in which a match has been dropped on the floor. You may go on for years without disturbance if you do not tread upon the match, but you may step upon it in the next hour, and then a terrible explosion is sure to follow."

"In your opinion, is Russia behind Servia?"

"The Panslavist party, if not Russia," Don Carlos replied. "The situation is a very grave one, and I shall not be greatly surprised if we have a general European war."

Don Carlos here suddenly abandoned English and asked, in unexceptional German, "Sprechen sie Deutsch?" Receiving an affirmative reply to this question, Don Carlos launched into German conversation with perfect ease. He proudly alluded to his mother, an Austrian Archduchess; to his grateful reminiscences of Prague and Gratz, and to his daily rides to the Prater while in Vienna. He intended, he said, to return to Austria as soon as possible, a country which he loved very much.

Don Carlos was finally summoned by a message from the barber, with whom he had made an engagement, and, in parting, he earnestly requested the correspondent to publish the true reason of his visit to this country in order to dispel all the stories as to his ambition for the Cuban and Mexican crown. "Adieu," he said, as he cordially grasped your correspondent's hand to bid him goodby.

Parliament Proceedings.

LONDON, July 10.—In the House of Commons this afternoon, in reply to an inquiry of Mr. Forster, Mr. Disraeli said the Government had received nothing more about the Bulgarian outrage than what had already transpired. Mr. Forster, under a motion for adjournment, attacked the Government. He said he believed the reports were true, and it was desirable that the country should know the Government's policy. Messrs. Ashley, Mundella, Anderson and Watkins supported Forsters' position. Disraeli said: "I do not deny there have been atrocities committed, but I believe the report is exaggerated."

Disastrous Conflagration.

ZURICH, July 10.—Fifty-two houses in the village of Elgg, near here, were burned yesterday; two persons are missing.

Merely Preliminary Skirmishing.

LONDON, July 10.—The Paris correspondent of the Times, reviewing the Eastern situation, says: "It is the opinion of competent men that nothing decisive has yet occurred. All that is now transpiring must be considered as a mere series of attempts by the Servians to join the Montenegrins, and such junction, when effected, will be the real beginning of the war. A Ragusa special to the same paper says the Montenegrin operations were delayed in order to give the insurgents time to reorganize and arm. This being completed, the Montenegrins resumed pursuit of the Turkish army in Herzegovinia. According to the latest reports, Dervish Pasha was preparing to attack their southern frontier. The Montenegrins held good defensive positions."

TERRIBLE LAKE DISASTER.

The Propeller St. Clair Burned—Twenty-six of the Passengers and Crew Drowned.

HOUGHTON, MICH., July 10.—Last Sunday morning, about 2 o'clock, the propeller St. Clair, Capt. Robert Rhyness, belonging to Ward's Line, on her way from Duluth, left Ontonagon for this port, having on board eighteen passengers and a crew of fourteen persons. When off Fourteen Mile Point a fire was discovered in the firehold of the vessel, and in less than five minutes the boat was enveloped in smoke and flames from one end to the other. Owing to the rapidity with which the flames spread but one boat was launched. Life preservers were brought on deck and all succeeded in putting one on when a rush was made for the yawl, which was swamped six or seven times. The water was very cold, and it was not long before all but one of the passengers, sixteen in number, perished, together with ten of the crew. When the boat caught fire she was five miles from shore.

It is reported that among the passengers lost were a number of residents from Ontonagon and Marquette county.

The boat's cargo was made up of cattle, flour, feed, &c. Tugs and boats are out searching for bodies. No further particulars.

Murderer Assassinated.

OMAHA, July 10.—The Herald's special from Nebraska City says: Between one and two o'clock this morning a party of masked men overpowered the guards and entered the jail and assassinated Hank Dodge, who was to be executed on the 21st of July. Dodge was confined in the iron cage and chained. Considerable excitement prevails, the people looking upon the deed as a foul and cowardly murder.

OMAHA, July 10.—The report that Gen. Crook had been killed and several companies of his command annihilated is not credited here. Nothing has been heard of it at the department headquarters. The Cheyenne papers say there is no truth in it so far as is known.

Volunteers Offering from the West.

WASHINGTON, July 10.—The Secretary of War has received a large number of dispatches from the West, offering volunteers for the Indian war, but there is no provision of law which will admit of these offers being entertained.

Up to noon no official reports from the Indian country had reached the War Department.

Going to Join Crook.

DETROIT, July 10.—Six companies of U. S. Infantry leave here for the West to-morrow to reinforce the forces operating against the Indians.

SITTING BULL AND THE SIOUX.

Personal Sketch of the Savage Chief—Peculiarities of the Tribe When on the War Path—Conversation with a Former Agent's Clerk.

The St. Louis Globe-Democrat gives the following sketch of the Sioux Chief in a conversation with Mr. J. D. Keller, of that city:

Mr. Keller was from 1868 to 1873 clerk of the agent at Standing Rock, and had ample opportunities to get acquainted with this tribe of blood thirsty savages. In fact he lived among them so long that he learned to speak their language "like a native," and was a great favorite of the big chiefs who came to the agency. They called him "Minnhua Ochila" [the Writing Boy]. The word Sioux means "cut-throat." According to Mr. Keller's statement, the various bands of Sioux number from 35,000 to 45,000, and are divided into the following different tribes: Unkapapa, Black Feet, Sans Arcs, Two Kettles, Upper Yanktonais, Lower Yanktonais, Santee Sioux, Burgklys, Minneconjons, and Galkas. Part of these live east and part west of the Missouri river. Tatpfka Olahka (Sitting Bull,) who led the savages in the fight against Custer, belongs to the Unkapapas (aried beef eaters.) Mr. Keller knows him well, and describes him to be about five feet in height. He has a large head, eyes, and nose, high cheek bones; one of his legs is shorter than the other, from a gun-shot wound in the left knee. His countenance is of an extremely savage type, betraying that bloodthirstiness and brutality for which he has been so long notorious. He has the name of being one of the most successful scalpers in the Indian country. There has been a standing reward of $1,000 offered for his head for the last eight years, by the Montana people, who have special cause to know his ferocious nature, some of his worst deeds having been perpetrated in that Territory. The Sioux, when on the war path, black their faces from the eyes down, the forehead being colored a bright red. When in mourning, and very eager to revenge the death of friends or relations, they cut their hair short and daub their faces with white earth. Their feats of horsemanship are wonderful. They consider the greatest act of valor to be the striking of their enemy with some hand instrument while alive, and, whether alive or dead, it is the first one that strikes the fallen foe that "counts the coup," and not the one that shoots him. They do not always scalp. Their object in scalping is to furnish a proof of their deed, and give them to their women to dance over. They always attack in a sweeping, circling line, eagle-like, give a volley, pass on, circle, and return on a different angle. When they kill one of the enemy there is always a rush to get a crack at him, so as to "count the coup," and then some Indian who was disappointed in getting a cut at the victim while alive scalps him. The Sioux always camp with tepes (lodges) in a circle, making, as it were, a stockade, and when on dangerous ground they picket their ponies in the centre. Mr. Keller is familiar with the ground where the disastrous engagement of Custer occurred. Concerning this he said: "My idea of the Custer slaughter is that the Indians had no women and children in their lodges, and had parapets dug under the lodges out of sight. Custer, thinking it was a family camp, rushed in the centre of their fort, where resistence would necessarily prove fatal. His only means of escape was, after finding himself in this fix, to run right through and out, and not stop to fight, but join Reno's command and retreat."

THE CROPS.

Cotton and Corn.

MEMPHIS, July 10.—The crop reports of the Cotton Exchange for June is completed from reports from 129 counties in West Tennessee, North Mississippi and North Arkansas. The prospects of the cotton crop as compared with that of last year are more favorable; the stand is better, but the crop is about seven days later than that of last year. The same districts report a more favorable condition of the corn crop. The grain crop, including oats and millet, are superior to that of last year. The Irish and sweet potato crop is eight per cent. in excess of that of last year, and is in good condition.

NEW ORLEANS, June 10.—The June crop reports from the New Orleans department state that reports have been received from thirty-four parishes in Louisiana: The crop is about an average one, the early crop being inferior to that of last year, while that planted since the overflow stands well and promises favorably. The bulk of the crop is fully two weeks late. From that portion of Mississippi included in this department the reports are generally favorable. The Arkansas report is compiled from answers received from twenty-six counties. The stand is generally good, and the plant is forming tolerably well, and just commencing to bloom. It is about ten days late, compared with last year's crop. The plant, though small and backward, is healthy and promises well.

GALVESTON DEPARTMENT.—The report from the Galveston department is compiled from reports from forty-three counties in Texas. The condition of the crop is good; above the average of last year.

The Dominican Trouble.

WASHINGTON, July 10.—From official advices received at the State Department to-day, relative to the reported insult to the American flag, it appears that the ex-Minister of War of Domico, Villemmevo, now a fugitive from justice, took refuge on board the steamer Tybee, lying in port at San Domingo, and the Dominican authorities demanded his surrender, which was refused by the captain of the vessel, whereupon the authorities boarded her and took him off. No insult was offered to the American flag, U. S. Consul or the captain of the Tybee, and there was no violation of any international law or stipulation of treaty.

The President has signed the bill extending for ten days from to-day the late provisional act relative to appropriations.

The Resumption Act.

WASHINGTON, July 10.—The Committee on Banking and Currency came to no conclusion this morning concerning the bill to repeal the specie resumption clause of the act of 1875, several Democratic members being absent. The committee are nearly equally divided. Some members are desirous of coupling with the proposed repeal a provision for the resumption of specie payment by the accumulation of a certain per centage of coin, but so far the committee are unable to agree.

The Dead Congressman.

LOUISVILLE, July 10.—The remains of the late Representative Parsons arrived this morning in charge of a committee appointed by Congress. The body during the day lay in state at City Hall, thousands visiting and gazing on the face of the dead. The funeral services were conducted by Bishop Kavanagh, of the M. E. church, the Knights Templar and a great number of citizens attending the obsequies.

THERE will be a general acquiescence in the final determination arrived at by the Centennial Commission to close its doors on Sunday.

WHAT an amount of buncombe speeches will be lost, should the various reports of the investigation committees fail to be read in the House before the close of the session.

IT will be a cause for regret if the bill establishing a sinking fund, whereby the Pacific roads will be finally compelled to pay off their indebtedness to the Government, shall fail for want of time. It ought to have been passed long ago.

THE Czar has promised not to interfere in the contest between Servia and Turkey. If he should adhere to this, Servia will hardly be able to cope with the Sultan's forces. The battles thus far have proven victories for the Turks.

THE burning of the old Castle Garden "battery," at the foot of New York City, will revive, in many, the recollection of the first glimpse caught of the metropolis, and of the first step taken on American soil. Thousands of emigrants have landed there of late years, and count that as their starting place in their struggle for a livelihood in the new world.

THROUGHOUT England operators are forced to reduce wages of all kinds. In woolen and cotton mills the reduction is ten per cent. and in Lancashire fifteen, with only four days work instead of six in each week. In the mining districts of Wygan and Tyldesley the same is reported, and in fact all over England and Wales the depression in values is felt so great, that reductions of all kinds of labor and fabrics are insisted upon.

THE leading Jewish Rabbis in New York have taken steps to discountenance extravagance and display at funerals, which of late years have grown to an extent as to call forth denunciation from every quarter, and yet no one appears to be able to set a better example, by adopting a more primitive and proper style. The prevailing custom has become so expensive that very many in the humbler walks of life cannot afford to indulge in the luxury of a fashionable funeral. Reform it altogether.

DON CARLOS, the Spanish Pretender and late Guerilla Chief who annoyed the forces of Spain, is quietly traveling incognito through the Southern States and Mexico. He arrived in this country, debarking at Baltimore some time ago, and since that time has been registering himself at hotels and on steamboats as D. CARLOS, Esq. Whether he intends annexing Mexico with the West Indies, and thus form a new Empire, or whether he is looking askance at our Southern States, with a view to another BURR enterprise, remains yet to be seen. He may find it more profitable to work a plantation or start a village store or run a hotel.

MR. BLAINE has so far improved in health as to be pronounced out of all danger, and he has concluded to accept the vacant seat in the Senate. The House will miss his valuable services, and among so many incompetents this is a serious matter, whilst his party will hardly be able to fill his place with a leader of such skill in Parliamentary law and aggressive force in debate. However, the country can congratulate itself that his life is spared and that his long experience and great ability are not to be lost to us. We trust his life may not only be spared, but that robust health and vigor may again be his, to enable him to take a foremost place in the front rank of his new position, where he will be of most service to his country.

THE news of the successful launching of a small steamer on the Albert N'yanza lake, in Central Africa, by Col. GORDON, has been received by the Royal Geographical Society. This lake is one hundred and forty miles long by fifty wide, and the steamer is expected to prove of commercial interest as well as to serve in further explorations. Mr. STANLEY'S continued absence, the last word received from him being more than a year ago, is beginning to give rise to fears that he has perished. Col. GORDON does not mention having heard of him, but the New York Times says of him: "For our part, we have no doubt of STANLEY'S safety. His courage, coolness, energy, and judgment have been so signally displayed that he merits supreme confidence. Such a man will triumph where any other explorer would be baffled and defeated. Before many months we shall learn of STANLEY'S arrival on the West Coast, and can prepare ourselves to welcome home the most intrepid and successful of all African explorers."

THE difference existing between the Senate and House on the Executive, Legislative and Judiciary appropriation is not so much a matter of money as of principle. The House insists in naming in the bill the amount of salaries, clerks and other employes shall receive, whilst the Senate takes the ground that the salaries existing, having been arranged by law, should remain until changed by appropriate enactments, after a careful survey of the entire matter, and that the House has no right to interpolate extraneous matter into appropriation bills and cause the one to be thus forced through with the other, or both fail together. The Senate is right in this, and the House is placing itself in a poor light before the country. The arrangement of the civil list, with salaries, services and all else connected therewith, is subject enough for an act by itself, which will sufficiently tax the abilities of the House or Senate in its preparation, and is altogether too important a matter to be rushed through at the tail end of an appropriation bill without due care, and a thorough understanding of the wants and necessities of the service. The House has no right to attempt to force the consent of the Senate to an enactment requiring great thought and deliberation, in order to save the appropriation bill.

MR. EVARTS, in his Centennial address, took occasion to speak his mind on the privileges and the power of the press, as a lever in the formation of public sentiment, and as a great instrument for moulding that sentiment into proper form. The power of the press is something that is admitted by all—philosophers as well as plebeians—and it becomes those who make use of it to be ever on guard, that injustice is done to no one, no matter how humble his walk in life. It is to be regretted, however, that in this free country, where there is no limit placed on the press, except local laws against libel on private character, too often unscrupulous men, who are utterly indifferent to the claims of justice and honor, get control of the press, and use it for the gratification of their personal and splenetic passions, regardless of the responsibilities which they ought to feel as educators of the people. To such, the laws for the protection of private character should be unsparingly applied, and thus the dignity of the profession, as the guardian of our public liberties, would be maintained. The newspaper ought never to be used for the purpose of circulating vile slander, and even accusations should be made only when good proof of their genuineness is produced, and to serve some public good. We are accustomed to sneer at the muzzling of the press in France and elsewhere, but we imagine a little of that same philosophy would not come amiss at times in free America.

THE large and attentively interested meeting of taxpayers which met on Saturday evening last, at the Forbes street school-house, to protest against the opening of that street down into the heart of the old city, as unnecessary, expensive and unwise on the part of Councils, is, or ought to be, a lesson to those bodies, that the people are awake to their interests, and watching the movements of their public servants not only, but that such expressions of public opinion as this must not go unheeded. The people are thoroughly awakened to the reality of the situation in this city—with business almost paralyzed, with streets full of idle men, with real estate broken down in value and rendered almost wholly unsaleable by reason of excessive taxation, and with the prospect ahead not any brighter than the present, realize that this is no time for Councils to be authorizing expensive and uncalled-for street openings and other unnecessary improvements whereby taxation must be largely increased. We trust that Councils will accept the word of advice tendered by this public meeting, and consider this expression of the people as indicative of the general desire to keep down all unnecessary expense, and conduct the city's affairs in the most economical manner possible. There will be quite time enough to go forward with great improvements, such as the one in contemplation on Forbes street, when times grow better, business improves, and the people can earn enough to support their families. Until then we trust they will desist.

DEMOCRATIC REFORM.

In another place we have shown that the House is attempting to cut down salaries and throw out many officials by indirectly forcing such a measure on one of the appropriation bills, whilst the Senate is resisting such attempts to force it into compliance. Now we find the same thing, only in a much worse form, in the existing differences between the Houses on the Sundry Civil bill. The House has tacked on to this appropriation a clause repealing the law for the protection of the right of suffrage, and of course the Senate refuses to concur. In our new State Constitution the Governor is empowered to veto any provision of the appropriation bills, and this power was given to him to prevent just such work as the Democrats in the House are attempting to accomplish viz.: attaching extraneous and offensive legislation to the appropriation bills, in order to force it through with those bills, the President not having the power to cut it out and veto it separately. The people ought to be informed of these proceedings, in order that the blame of delay and possible defeat of the appropriation bills shall rest where they properly belong. The Democrats are falsely representing that the bills are delayed and jeopardized because the Senate refuses to accept the reductions proposed by the House. This is not so, as the Senate has already acceded to these reductions to the amount of many millions rather than have the bills fail.

But on a plain question of principle, such as we have named, and where no appropriation is strictly involved, the Senate is clearly right in resisting the improper demands of the House, and the people will so decide in case the bills should fail, and the wheels of the Government be brought in consequence to a stand. What good reason the House can give for this attempt to repeal the suffrage act, and again give rein to the ballot box stuffers and repeaters of New York and other places, it would be hard to guess, unless they claim that the end would justify the means, as in this way they hope to carry the State of New York for TILDEN and HENDRICKS. Such is a sample of their reform.

GOVERNOR HAYES' LETTER.

Those Republicans who pinned their faith from the start to Governor HAYES are not likely to be disappointed. He is, undoubtedly, a growing candidate, one wise enough to hold on to all the public reputation he has already acquired by faithful devotion to every trust, and full compliance with every duty imposed upon him, whether in the army or in civil life, in public or in private circles, and at the same time great enough in intellect and good enough in his heart to find out the wishes and the needs of the people, and espouse their cause as his own. There can be no question that in the public address he has delivered to the people, called, nominally, his letter of acceptance, he has struck the key notes of reform in every particular in which the public have an interest, and thus has proven that he is fully acquainted with the pressing topics of the day, and has the will and the inclination to boldly announce his views for the consideration of the American people. Nor does he do so in any uncertain way, but in good plain Saxon words he informs his constituency just what his views are on the leading questions, likely to be called up for discussion during the next few years, so that all may know clearly what they are to expect from him in case of his election as President, and none may vote unintelligently. There is no dodging, nor prevarication, no attempt to straddle two horses at once, no feeble effort to soothe the feelings of those who may differ from him, but plainly and unmistakeably he writes down his impressions and opinions and asks a verdict from the people in November, whether he is right or wrong. If you think he is right, and with honesty and firmness enough to enforce his publicly stated views, vote for him; if you think otherwise, you will vote for his opponent. That is what Governor HAYES means by his letter. He wants no votes obtained by false pretenses, nor through the arts of the partisan politician. If he is to be the head of the Government of the people, for the people, and to be placed there by the people, he wants them to know beforehand just what they may expect from him if elected. Now, we ask our readers to take this straightforward, manly, and statesmanlike paper, sift it well, study its every thought, and compare it after awhile with a document similar in character, to be issued by the candidate of Democracy. See if the latter comes out clearly, honestly and boldly, with no attempts at double shuffling, or studied effort to nicely adjust its expressions of views in order that none may be offended. Watch and see if the letter to be issued does not attempt to urge hard money with a decided liking for a paper currency, and that while it fairly bristles all over with the bewildering cry of "Reform," yet it fails to state wherein that reform is to take effect. To the Democratic party under the leadership of JACKSON, is the country indebted for the political maxim, "to the victors belong the spoils," and this is one of the abuses Governor HAYES proposes to reform, and so states specifically. He will favor, if elected, the appointment of no one to office, except through merit and fitness alone. Political party service will not hereafter be the sole qualification for office, but the good old JEFFERSONIAN test will be demanded, viz.: "Is he sober, is he honest, is he capable?" When this reform is effected, and thoroughly implanted as a cardinal maxim, we may look for essential improvement in the civil service, and not before. Does any one expect this sort of "reform" from the hungry Democracy? Why, no! Should Tilden be elected President, Washington City would not begin to hold the crowd of hungry patriots, who would swarm there like the locusts of Egypt, and clamor for the loaves and fishes, because they had served their party. This is the history of that party from first to last, even down to their control at Harrisburg and Washington in the current sessions. The very best and most competent of officials had to walk the board, in order to make room for a lot of ignorant, drunken rowdies, who knew absolutely nothing of the duties of the positions assigned them. Is it not a fact? Let any one attempt to deny it, and we will point him to the class of persons filling the positions to-day at Harrisburg and Washington. And yet this is the party who cry out "Reform."

Nor is this all, Governor HAYES, believing that to be perfectly independent in office, one must not be himself a candidate for re-election, and therefore he announces now, that if he should be elected President, under no circumstances would he be a candidate for a second term, thus leaving himself, whilst in office, wholly untrammeled and free from all temptation to make appointments otherwise than for fitness. He adopts the system of civil service reform in all its parts and applies it to the highest office as well as to the lowest, so that the vast army of officials may not be used to perpetuate their power.

On the question of the sacredness of the public school fund, and of its undivided application to the instruction of all the youth of the land he is sound in doctrine, and wisely prudent in the manner of his expression with reference to it. He makes no furious attack upon those who seek to divide the school fund, and thus inflame the passions of men, but quietly suggests an effectual remedy which will forever put the subject at rest. An amendment to the Constitution, forbidding the division of the school fund for sectarian purposes, will be in perfect harmony with that instrument, whilst it will settle the matter forever, leaving the schools, as now, open and free to all the children of every religious denomination and of every color and race.

Governor HAYES has not shut his eyes to the obvious fact that capital, labor and life itself are insecure in many places in the Southern States, and insists that something shall be done through which the rights of all shall be recognized by all, "without reserve or exception." It is notorious that the rights and lives of the Blacks in many places in the South are very lightly respected, a fact corroborated by every one who visits that section, or who has connection with it, and it is high time that some effectual measures shall be adopted to secure to the freedmen their rights to "life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness," in accordance with the Declaration, otherwise that instrument to them is but a meaningless nothing. Does any body expect TILDEN and the Democratic party, in view of his and their opposition to the thirteenth, fourteenth and fifteenth amendments, to take any measures in the interest of the colored men and women of the South? The same tenderness and affection to the freedmen may be expected from that quarter, as is shown by the savage Sioux to our defenceless settlers and defeated troops. There can be no question that if the Democratic party should gain control of every department of the National Government they would pursue the same policy that they have exhibited in the organization of the Lower House at Washington, and all crippled and disabled soldiers, white or black, would have to retire to make room for the heroes of the Southern Confederacy and their allies among the Northern Democracy. Union men who fought for their country would be discharged to make room for blatant rebels.

We ask every reader and every good Republican to cut this grand letter of our candidate out, and when there is time for it, read it carefully through, and ask himself whether he cannot trust its author with the reins of civil power over this great people. We are more and more convinced, as we become better acquainted with the character and opinions of Governor HAYES, that in his nomination there can be found corroboration of the poet's thought, that "there is a Divinity that shapes our ends," and that an especial Providence has raised him up at this time, to rule this people aright, and to furnish by his bright example and beauty of character a lesson and a master to assuage the passions of men.

NEW PUBLICATIONS.

THE ANDES AND THE AMAZON; or across the Continent of South America, by Jas. Ortin, A. M., Professor of Natural History in Vassar College; third edition, revised and enlarged, containing notes of a second journey across the Continent from Para to Lima and Lake Liticaca, with maps and illustrations. Published by Harper & Bros., New York, and for sale in Pittsburgh by R. S. Davis & Co., corner of Fifth avenue and Wood street.

The author of this volume was one of a party, that made a scientific exploration to the equatorial Andes and the river Amazon, under the auspices of the Smithsonian Institute. He recorded his observations in a series of papers published in the New York Evening Post, and this book is mainly made up of these papers. He writes with graceful ease, and tells much that is new of the land which the party explored. It is one of the most entertaining books of the kind we have ever read—entertaining as much for its style as for its information of a land full of romance.

A GENERAL HISTORY OF GREECE, from the earliest period to the death of Alexander the Great, with a sketch of the subsequent history to the present time. By George W. Cox, M. A.

A GENERAL HISTORY OF ROME, from the foundation of the city to the fall of Argustulus. By Charles Merivale, D. D.

These two volumes belong to the new Students' series, now being published by the Messrs. Harper, and of which we have heretofore spoken in commendation. The reader has here, in condensed form and perspicuous style, the history of each of the two great nationalities. The story of each is written without any attempt at ornamentation, but as written is fascinatingly attractive. The volumes are worthy of a place alongside of the "Student's Hume."

MEN AND MANNERS OF AMERICA ONE HUNDRED YEARS AGO. Edited by H. E. Scudder. Published by Scribner, Armstrong & Co., New York, and for sale in Pittsburgh by R. S. Davis & Co., corner Fifth avenue and Wood street.

Just the work for Centennial times. It is one of the Sans Souci series, and is beautifully gotten up. It gives sketches of men and people, and manners and dress and historic events in the olden time. It is finely illustrated, and is altogether a multum in parvo of Centennial lore.

THE COMPLETE POETICAL WORKS OF HENRY WADSWORTH LONGFELLOW, with numerous illustrations. Published by James R. Osgood & Co., Boston, and for sale in Pittsburgh by J. R. Weldin & Co., 101 Wood street.

This is one of the pamphlet Centennial editions of the poets, each volume of which is sold for a dollar. There is here in cheap form the best of the writings of the great poet.

THEOPHILUS AND OTHERS; by Mary Mapes Dodge. Published by Scribner, Armstrong & Co., and for sale in Pittsburgh by R. S. Davis & Co., corner Fifth avenue and Wood street.

A series of bright, breezy sketches, full of humor and at times pathetic tenderness—never overdrawn but always life-like, vivacious, pungent and entertaining.

THE ATONEMENT OF LEAM DUNDAS; by Mrs. A. Lynn Linton. Published by J. B. Lippincott & Co., Philadelphia, and for sale in Pittsburgh by J. R. Weldin & Co., 101 Wood street.

This is a reprint from Lippincott's magazine, of a love story which was quite popular with readers of romance, when published as a serial.

HIDDEN PERILS; by Mary Cecil Hay. Published by Harper & Bros., and for sale in Pittsburgh by R. S. Davis & Co., corner Fifth avenue and Wood street.

This is one of Harper's select list. It is a pleasant story.

AFFAIRS OF STATE.

THE Yost murder trial has been resumed at Pottsville.

WM. MEE stabbed and killed his brother John at Wilkesbarre on the Fourth. Both were intoxicated.

THE Union City Enterprise, of Erie county, formerly an independent paper, has hoisted the Republican ticket.

AT Lebanon, on the night of July 3d, a reckless villain deliberately discharged a musket into a crowd of women and children, wounding four of them.

ON the 28th of June Daniel Kroninger, of Berks county, cut a piece of wheat, had the grain threshed, converted into flour, and baked into bread on the same day.

THE mechanics in the shops of the Reading Railroad Company have been ordered to work only eight hours a day. Seventy-five men have also been suspended for two weeks.

AT Scranton on the Fourth J. C. McGowan stole a horse from P. J. McAndrews. The latter pursued and overtook him and beat him so badly that he died in a day or two afterward. Horse stealing is bad enough, but murder is worse.

THE Commissioners of Luzerne county have received a notice from Auditor General Temple that the bank tax of that county for 1875, amounting to $5,879.34, must be paid at once or suit will be instituted for its recovery. This is further evidence of the defalcation of ex-Treasurer Courtright.

THE monument to the Revolutionary heroine, "Molly Pitcher," at Carlisle, was unveiled with appropriate ceremonies at noon on the Fourth of July. Mrs. Polly Maleaster, a grand-daughter of the famous woman, was present and assisted in doing honor to the memory of her courageous ancestor.

ON Friday last a trial of several Antwerp carrier pigeons was made at Scranton. One of them carried a message of 207 words, written on fine tissue paper, from Scranton to New York, a distance of 150 miles, in two hours and twenty-seven minutes. Every one of the birds safely arrived at their destination, all having made the journey in less than three hours.

DOMESTIC TROUBLES in the family of a Mr. Seaman, of Bernville, Berks county, induced his wife to desert her family on Wednesday morning. She fled in the direction of Mohrsville, but was followed by her husband, who loaded his five children, ranging in age from 3 to 8 years, upon a hired wagon with the intention of taking them to his father's home in Centre township. When half way between Bernville and Mohrsville, the horse became fractious and commenced kicking violently. He kicked in the dasher and struck the youngest child, aged 3 years, and a 7-year-old child. The former was kicked so badly that it cannot recover, the skull having been fractured so that the brain was exposed, the nasal bone cut off, and the teeth crushed in. Two fingers on the left hand were completely severed. The other child was also badly injured, her teeth being crushed in, face bruised, besides having been kicked in the breast, causing the blood to flow from her mouth and nostrils.

ANTI-SLANG SOCIETY.

Heroic Efforts of Young Ladies to Suppress the American Language.

The "Reform Club" is the title of a new organization in the West End, organized by young ladies for the purpose of discouraging the use of slang phrases in conversation. At a recent meeting, while a member was addressing the society, she inadvertently made use of the expression, "awful nice," and was called to order by a sister member for transgressing the rules.

"In what way have I transgressed?" asked the speaker, blushing deeply.

"You said it would be 'awful' nice to admit young gentlemen to our deliberations," replied the other.

"Well, wouldn't it be?" returned the speaker, "you know you said yourself no longer ago than yesterday that—"

"Yes, I know; but you said 'awful nice.' That's slang."

"Well," said the speaker, tartly, "if you are going to be so awful nice about it, perhaps it is; but I wouldn't say anything if I were you. Didn't you tell Sallie Spriggins, this morning, to pull down her basque?"

"No, I didn't," retorted the other, her face growing crimson; "and Sallie Spriggins will say I didn't. She won't go back on me."

"This is a nice racket you are giving us," cried the President, after wrapping both speakers to order. "Let us ask what is the object of this society?"

"To discourage slang," cried a dozen voices.

"Kerect," said the President, "go on with the funeral."

A member rose to explain that she had been fined at the last meeting for saying "awful nice" herself, but she hadn't the "stamps to pay it now—would settle, however, 'in the sweet by and by.'"

"That'll be all right," said the President, "pay when you have the ducats."

Another lady asked if a young lady could say "old splendid" without subjecting herself to a fine.

"You bet she can't," said the President, who was the original founder of the society, and therefore appealed to when any nice question was to be decided.

"Then," said the speaker, "I move that Miranda Pew come down with the dust, for I heard her say that her beau was 'just old splendid.'"

Miranda's face was in a blaze as she cried:

"Well, if my beau was such an old hairpin as your fellow is I wouldn't say it."

"Shoot the chinning!" cried the President, "will you never tumble?"

But the confusion was too great to be allayed. Miranda's blood was up; some sided with her and others against her, and amid the Babel that followed could be heard such exclamations as "dry up," "nice blackberry you are," "wipe off your chin," "hire a hall," etc., when a motion to adjourn was carried "by a large majority."

A Proper Respect.

A stranger with a boil on his neck entered a Penn street saloon on the Fourth and called for a glass of liquor. When he had emptied the contents down his throat, he looked into the enquiring eye of the bar-keeper and said:

"This is a secular day, is it?"

"Nein," answer the Teuton.

"No, sir, this is a national holiday."

"So it vas," good-naturedly added the bar-tender.

"I know you have a proper respect for it," said the stranger, "and I will not insult you by offering you money for this drink. We are all brothers to-day."

"You don't vas pay me, eh?" asked the German.

"Why you wouldn't take money to-day."

"You youst pet!" significantly put in the barkeeper.

"Well, I won't tempt you," said the man as he turned toward the door.

About fifteen minutes afterward, when they had finished sweeping the sidewalk with him, he was prepared to assert that the American Republic was the most demoralized nation on the face of the habitable globe. He was one of the most demoralized citizens, at all events.

A Martyr to Science.

A Burlington naturalist last Sunday while investigating the causes and effect of the poison of a wasp sting, nobly determined to make of himself a martyr to science, and accordingly handed his thumb to an impatient insect he had caged in a bottle. The wasp entered into the martyr business with a great deal of spirit and backed up to the thumb with an abruptness which took the scientist by surprise. He was so deeply absorbed in the study of remedies, that he forgot to make any notes of the other points in connection with stings, but his wife wrote a paragraph in his note book, for the benefit of science, to the effect that the primary effect of a wasp sting is abrupt, blasphemous and terrific profanity, followed by an intense desire, fairly amounting to a mania, for ammonia, camphor and raw bread.

Thanatopsis.

Some one lately asked Mr. Wm. Cullen Bryant where his "Thanatopsis" was written, as it was a tradition that he wrote it when a student in Williams College. Mr. Bryant answered that, entering Williams in the sophomore class in 1811, he left it in May, 1812, intending to go to Yale, but as his father's means did not permit of that, he returned to his home in Cummington, his native place, and there, one afternoon, after wandering through the woods of that region, he rested beneath a group of majestic forest trees, and wrote the poem of "Thanatopsis," being then in his eighteenth year.

THE BEST POLICE.

How the Boys at Oxford Were Toned Down by the Presence of the Girls.

Moncure D. Conway, writing from London, tells this story of the way the boys at Oxford were conquered at the last "Commencement": "Una rode the lion, and the barbarian Ingomar was tamed by his sweetheart, and the authorities at Oxford appear to have taken a hint from those old stories in dealing with the undergraduates of Oxford, whose traditional habit it has been to relapse into barbarism on the occasion of the annual commemoration. The way in which they shout and yell at every gentleman who advances to receive his honorary degree, and make loud remarks about the ladies' bonnets, had become such a scandal that the professors resolved to exclude them from the theater altogether. This year, however, they resolved to try them once more, and under novel conditions. They introduced a large number of young ladies to the seats hitherto exclusively occupied by the undergraduates, and no two of the students sat together, every alternate person being a lady. The result was perfect order and decorum. The theater never presented a more quiet scene in the most monastic period of the University's history. What professors and policemen have for many years vainly attempted to accomplish was achieved by the mere presence of these modest dames, and some friends of the University are already considering whether the principle may not be capable of extension. Possibly we might hear less of "town and gown" fights in the streets of Oxford, and less of tipsy midnight suppers, if the young men were to find themselves, the whole year round, in hall and lecture-room, in proximity to the young ladies among whom they are to look in after years for their wives. It really does seem to be not altogether a sentimental theory that women carry a higher standard of civility into every department of life into which they are admitted."

Custer's Domestic Life at the Fort.

The following, which appeared in the Dakota correspondence of the Minneapolis Tribune is made interesting by recent events: "This Spring General Custer's golden curls have been sacrificed; he looks younger, more soldierly, although less poetical, and the coming reconnoissance will prove if he is shorn of his strength. At present General Custer is thirty-four years old—a slender, fair-haired, blue-eyed man. His wife, a charming lady, who has shared his marches and victories since early in the war, is as gentle and cultivated and yet as soldierly as a woman can be, and her home is one green spot, if there be no others, in the frontier life of the officers of the Seventh. A few evenings since, the writer, entering Gen. Custer's library, saw a new phase of the man's character. He sat on a low stool by his desk with a spelling book in his hand; before him were too little girls, one white and the other colored, the children of his servants, whom he was affording the necessities denied by the lack of schools. Apologizing for my interruption, I was withdrawing, when he cried out in his hearty way, 'Come in, come in, and see my school.' I entered the room, and in a pleasant, familiar way, he went on with his teaching, having the scholars spell the words alternately, tell their meaning, and construct sentences. I have found that this has been his custom for several years, and all these little people of his household know of written words is what he has taught them."

Latest Advices Concerning Money and Stock Matters.

OFFICE OF THE PITTSBURGH GAZETTE, TUESDAY, July 11, 1876.

Nothing new in banking circles, and we may look for nothing until the fall business starts up business and a demand for our home manufactures. Coal is very low in the lower markets with slight demand, and this, along with other dullness, causes light business at the banks. Demand for local stocks is good, the recently announced dividends starting up unemployed capital in that direction. Money plenty, and good paper scarce.

In a recent address delivered in Philadelphia the following just tribute was paid to our national banks:

"Mr. President, my candid conviction is that the present national banking system reformed and perfected offers and will be the means of restoration that must eventually be adopted. A round sum of fifteen hundred millions of dollars is due to the national banks by the people and the general government. They stand to-day between us and an absolute chaos of values. They have battled bravely and hard to maintain the commercial situation. The evil they have prevented has no demonstration; the world will never know the imminence of the peril. During the thirteen years the system has been in operation they have met every reasonable and just requirement."

There is a very limited legitimate business demand for money, which we continue to quote on call at 4@6 per cent., strictly first-class two-name paper at 5@5½ per cent., strictly first-class single-name paper at 5@6 per cent., loans on Government collateral at five per cent., first-class bonds and stocks at 5@5½ per cent., on second-class bonds and stocks at 6@8 per cent. At New York call loans range at from 2 to 2½ per cent.

—The returns of the valuation of property in New York city show only a check in increase of value, but the check is so great that the aggregate is nearly stationary. The total increase in the value of real estate is but $8,800,000, which is rather less than one per cent. The value of taxable personal property, which is but a small proportion of the whole amount of personal property, shows an increase of but little more than a million dollars, which is much less than one per cent. The aggregate of real estate valuation this year is $892,428,165, and of personal $218,626,178, or a total of $1,111,054,343.

—A circular from the Comptroller of the Currency has been sent to the various National Banks requesting the cashiers of each bank to furnish a detailed account of the amount of municipal, county and State taxes demanded of them during 1875; also, the amount paid for revenue stamps during the same period. The object of the inquiry is to get trustworthy data on which to base the details of the Comptroller's report to Congress next December.

Dry Goods.

NEW YORK, July 10.—The trade movement was slow with domestic commission houses and importers, and jobbing branches quiet. Cotton goods moved slowly at unchanged prices. Print cloths were higher, with an upward tendency. Prints ruled quiet. Heavy woolen goods for men's wear continued in moderate request.

Condition of the Markets at Home and Abroad.

PITTSBURGH MARKETS—WEEKLY REVIEW.

OFFICE OF THE PITTSBURGH GAZETTE, MONDAY, July 10, 1876.

General business continues dull, more so than it usually is at this particular time, when it is always dull, and there is not likely to be any general improvement until about the middle of next month or when the fall trade opens up. Some of our merchants report that they never knew business to be as dull as it has been recently, alleging that they have not made actual expenses, although economizing in every way possible. The leading markets present but little that is really important, and about the only important change in values was an advance on Sugars of ⅛ to ¼ of a cent ⅌ lb. There is a firmer feeling in Grain and Hay, in consequence of very light stocks, while the Hog products are steady at quotations, with a very fair trade. Butter and Eggs dull and weak, and Cheese is also weaker.

APPLES—New crop, the supply of which has just about been equal to the demand, are selling at from $2,50a3,50 ⅌ bbl, as to quality.

ASHES—Trade continues dull, and prices are lower: Common Soda, 2¾a3c; Refined do., 3½a3¾c; Arsenic, 5c; Nitrate Soda, 4c.

ALE—There is no change to note in prices and trade is generally reported dull, like everything else, affected by the hard times. X $8 ⅌ bbl to the city and $9 to country; XX $10; India $11. half bbls in proportion.

BROOMS—The movement is light, but fully up to the expectations of manufacturers, as this is the dullest season of the year. We have no change to note in values. Quote "Union Factory" prices as follows:

No 1 Hurl	$1,75
No 2 Hurl	1,85
No 3 Hurl	2,00
No 4 Stalk braid	2,50
No 4 Hurl	2,75

BROOM HANDLES—We quote in a jobbing way:

No 2 do	12 00	do
No 1 Painted	24 00	do
Toy Painted	12 50	do

BRUSHES—White Scrubbing, $10a11 ⅌ gross Gray, $11a20; White Bristle, $22a36; Shoe, $13a50; Horse (wood backs) $22a66; Horse (leather backs) $45a135; Extra white-wash, $36a75; Common do, $24a60.

BEESWAX—Unchanged: 30a35c ⅌ lb.

BEANS—The season is about over, and the probability is that notwithstanding the supply is small, it will have to be carried over; as there is scarcely any inquiry; prices are nominal; with occasional small sales of navies at 90c@$1 ⅌ bu.

BUTTER—The market has been very dull during the past week, owing in part to the extremely hot weather which always curtails the consumption, and what little inquiry there was was restricted to choice, the supply of which continues light although equal to the demand. The receipts of all grades continue light, and with the thermometer up in the nineties all the Butter by the time it reaches here is soft, and this is not without its effect in curtailing the demand, which at best is always light at this season of the year. Prime to choice solid packed, in small packages at 15a17c; common to fair, 9a12c. It is not likely that there will be any improvement in the market until the hot weather has subsided.

CHEESE—The market has been less active during the past week—the demand having been curtailed by the hot weather, and with the supply accumulating somewhat and a decline at the factories prices have been dropped ½c; we now quote prime new Ohio Factory, 8a8½ to the trade, and 9a9½c in a jobbing way.

CEMENT, &C., &C.—Following are the jobbing rates: White Lime—Cleveland and Fremont, $1,60a1,75 ⅌ bbl; Ohio, $1,50a1,65. Cement—Rosendale $3a3,50 ⅌ bbl; Youghiogheny, $2,00a2,25; Louisville, $2,00a2,25; New Lisbon, $2,25a2,75; Portland, $6,50a7,50. Plaster—French's Selected, $4a4,25; New York, $3,50a3,75; Michigan, $3,50a3,75. Land Plaster, $3a3,50. White Sand, $1,50a1,75 ⅌ bbl.

CORDAGE AND ROPE—There is no improvement in the demand and no change to make in prices, which we annex as follows:

COOPERAGE—No. 1 heading, 40; No. 1 staves, $30; matched, 32; long bucked river staves, 25; rough staves, $20a22. Oil barrels higher; country, $1,20; city make, $1,30a1,35.

CANNED GOODS—Very dull, as they always are at this season of the year, when the markets are well supplied with fresh vegetables and fruits.

2 lb Blackberries	$2 50	2 lb Bartlett Pears	$3 00
2 lb Blueberries	2 00	2 lb Common Pears	2 00

3 lb Peaches	2 25	2 lb Peas	2 25
3 lb pie Peaches	1 60	3 lb Tomatoes	1 50

DRIED FRUIT—There is little or nothing doing in either domestic or foreign dried fruits, and in the absence of sales prices are entirely nominal.

EGGS—The market has weakened during the past week, and notwithstanding the supply was light, prices have declined 1a2c ⅌ doz. We now quote at 16a17c, and with anything like free receipts quoted rates will not long be maintained. The decline, however, was not unexpected, as there is nearly always a tumble just after the "Fourth."

FISH—There is a fair trade but no change in prices, which we annex as follows:

Ex No 1 Mess Mackerel	$24 00	⅌ bbl.
No 1 do do	22 00	do
No 1 Shore do	20 00	do

Boneless Codfish	7	do
Halibut	12 50	do
No 1 Herring	40c	⅌ box
Scaled do	50c	do
Smoked Bloater Herring	$1.75	do

FLOUR—The market continues rather dull and presents but little that is new or important. As their is every prospect of a good wheat crop, a good deal of it having already been secured, the feeling prevails that prices will rule lower before long; as yet, however, standard brands continue to command full rates, and there is not likely to be much of a decline until the new stock is ready to market, which will not be for a month or more. Quotations may be given as follows: Spring wheat flours, $6a6,50, the outside figure for choice Minnesotas; red winters, $6,50a7; ambers, $7,25a7,50; patent process and fancy white wheat, $8,50a9,50. Rye Flour, $4,50a5.

GROCERIES—Coffee—The market for Brazil Coffee is nominal, there being but a single transaction reported in New York, from first hands, during the week ending July 7th. The latest Rio telegram, however, is still favorable to importers, whose views are firm. The statistical position is as follows:

	Bags.
Stock of Brazil Coffee in first hands	221,997
Same time in 1875	45,316
Same time in 1874	116,432
Stock of Brazil Coffee in second hands	131,133
Afloat and loading to May 24	21,236
Purchased to July 1	66,000
Total visible supply in first hands	311,223
Total visible supply June 23, 1875	363,818

Java and other mild grades steady, but lower.

Sugar—raw sugars advanced in the last week ⅛ to ⅜, and the tendency is upward. Refined, hard and softs, advanced full ½c per lb, from the lowest point touched three weeks ago; and the belief is general that still higher prices will obtain. The supply is unequal to the demand, the refiners being oversold seven to ten days. Some dealers are of the opinion that a further advance of ⅛ to ⅜ on standard and refined is not improbable. Yellows strong at relatively higher figures than whites. N. O. Molasses steady. Syrups dull and neglected. Rice lower for common grades, while the finer qualities are without change. Teas drag along without the slightest animation, and buyers have everything their own way. Spices steady.

GRAIN—The grain markets continue dull, as the demand is confined almost wholly to supplying immediate wants, but, with the exception of Wheat and Rye, there is a firmer feeling, and it begins to look as if both Corn and Oats have touched bottom. There appears to be no demand for Wheat, and notwithstanding the stock in the hands of dealers is small, prices are weak and nominal; millers hereabouts appear to have about all the stock they want, and even for good sound wheat, which a few weeks ago was wanted, prices are much lower, and the market very dull even at the decline. Prime to choice red, in the absence of sales may be quoted at $1,20a1,25. The supply of Oats in this market is down lower than it has been for a year or more, and without any very decided improvement in the demand, the market is firmer. Some dealers believe that this Grain is good property at current rates, and it worthy of notice that there is nearly always an advance between the old and the new; furthermore, the offerings are usually light during July and early August, when people in the country are busily engaged in getting their crops secured. Prices may be given at 32a33 for Penna. and Ohio mixed, and 34a35c. for do white. The market for Corn is firmer, and prices since the date of our last weekly review have been advanced 2a3c per bu. Sales of Shelled were reported during the week at prices ranging from 52a56c, free in elevator, as to quality and condition—the latter figure was paid for a car of prime yellow Kansas. There is no demand for Ear Corn, which may be attributed to the hot weather, as well as the low price of other feed, which is more suitable for feeding at this season of the year. Rye is also dull; most of the distilleries have stopped, and all millers want is not a drop in the bucket; we quote nominally at 73a75c.

HEMP—$125a130 ⅌ ton for Ky. Rough.

HIDES—Following are the current rates:

Green Salted Cows	6½a 7
Green Salted Steers, Light	7½a 8
Green Salted Steers, Heavy	9 a 9½
Green Salted Calf	9 a11
Green Butcher Cows	5½
Green Butcher Steers, light	6
Green Butcher Steers, heavy	7
Green Butcher Calf	9a 10

HAY—The receipts, both baled and loose, have been comparatively light during the past week, and while there was no improvement in the demand the market is firmer, and there is a probabillity that prices may rule somewhat higher within the next few weeks, as they nearly always do when farmers are busily engaged in harvesting. Baled, $13a14 for No. 1 timothy and $11a12 for No. 2. Loose from country wagons, $10a15.

LEATHER—General market rather quiet. Rough Leather in fair demand for choice article—common grades a drug in the market. Upper and Kip—no demand except for usual hand-to-mouth actual orders. Calf slow. Red Sole in good demand in small lots. We quote:

LUMBER—The lumber afloat in the market has mostly been sold, prime timber selling from $8 to $15 per cubic; Hemlock from $5 to $7; sawed lumber was sold from $14 to $18 per M, as to quality, and from $10 to $15 for coarse lots. Yard trade is quiet; some dealers report a better trade than last year at same time. We quote:

MILL FEED—There is no demand scarcely except in a small way, and prices are nominally unchanged: Bran on track, $11a12; Seconds and Shipstuffs, $12a14; Middlings and Chopped Feed, $18a20.

OILS—Summer made Lard oil is lower for all grades. Linseed steady. Refined Petroleum up 1c ⅌ gallon. John V. Lewis & Co.'s standard winter white and yellow miner's oil in good request at previous figures.

PEA-NUTS—Dull, especially Tennessee red, which we quote at 5a5½c. Tennessee white selling in job lots only at 6a7 for choice well cleaned, 5a5½c for dirty and badly handled. Virginia held at 8½c for strictly choice, while some lots of very inferior are on the market at much less prices.

POULTRY—Live Chickens selling, by the coop, at 50a60c ⅌ pair for young, and 65a70c ⅌ pair for old.

POTATOES—The supply of new crop has been light for some days past and prices were advanced $1a1,50 per bbl in consequence; we now quote at $4a4,50 per bbl. It is not likely that these prices will be maintained long. Old crop selling at 35a40c ⅌ bushel.

PROVISIONS—Pork and Lard easier. Bulk meats are held higher. Bacon firm. Sugar-cured Hams are in better demand at full figures. Sugar-cured canvassed Shoulders are ½c higher at the curing markets.

WOOL—Not much doing in this vicinity—prices are unchanged, 30c being the highest price paid. Dealers are more cautious than usual in hunting out well cleansed wools; in the coarse wool districts east and north of the city, the clip is pretty well taken up; the amount grown in these sections is not large. In Allegheny, Washington, Fayette, and Green counties, where the fine wools are mostly grown, considerable wool has changed hands, and in other sections there has been little done. Wools are reported to accumulate on the market east, and if the clip should go out freely the price may not be maintained. Unwashed, 15a20c; washed, 25a30c.

ALLEGHENY LIVE STOCK MARKET.

OFFICE OF THE PITTSBURGH GAZETTE, MONDAY, July 10, 1876.

CATTLE.

The supply was again light, and with an average demand, and the Chicago bought cattle costing from 15 to 25c per cent more, the market was active at an advance about equal to the enhanced cost. The most remarkable feature to notice is that common and medium grades brought better prices relatively than the best cattle, which was owing to the fact that there was more inquiry for the former than the latter; some dealers claimed that prime stock brought no more than last week, while conceding an advance of 20a25c per cwt on medium grades of light weights. The fact is, heavy cattle are not wanted and are hard to dispose of at any price; there was one car of heavy weights on sale to-day, but they had to be shipped to East Liberty.

There was nothing reported to-day above 5¾, whereas there were sales at the same figure last Monday; but there were cattle sold at 4½a5c, which last week did not bring within 25c per cwt of these figures, demonstrating what we have already stated, that the medium grades were more sought after, and consequently brought more money relatively than the finer grades. The bulk of the sales were within the range of 4½a5c.

We regret to learn that Alex. Greenwould, one of our oldest and most prominent Allegheny drovers, has been obliged to make an assignment.

SHEEP AND LAMBS.

The supply was the largest of the season, footing up 1,110 head, and while prime stock sold readily enough, and at full last week's prices, as the supply was not more than sufficient to supply the demand; common and scalawag stock, of which the offerings largely consisted, was very dull, and at 11 A. M., it looked as if there would be some left over unsold. Prime to extra fat sheep quotable at 5a5¼; medium to good, 4a4½; Geo. Jardine wholesaled 74 head to Mike Bryarly at $2 per head; Bryarly turned around and wholesaled the same bunch at a profit of about 25c per head. FRESH COWS.

The supply was small and the market was a little better in consequence. Jas. Haworth reported 5 at $37a40 each. Prime milkers, $55a60, with very few of that kind offering.

HOGS.

VEAL CALVES.

There is less inquiry, hence notwithstanding the offerings continue light, prices are weak and lower; 5a6c per lb, according to quality.

RIVER NEWS.

State of the Rivers, Movements of Steamboats, &c.

THE stage of water last evening was 3 feet 4 inches and falling. Weather continues oppressively hot, and business dull.

THE I. N. Phillips is back from Wheeling.

JNO. LYONS, an old Pittsburgh and Zanesville pilot, is on the Salt Valley, and has been for some time past.

CAPT. WASH KERR is reported as having expended $5,000 in repairing the Granite State at Cincinnati.

BOTH rivers were falling at headwaters yesterday, and navigation will soon be suspended unless there is more rain.

THE Fanchon succeeded in getting off Raccoon bar some time on Sunday; she was met at Line Island by the Salt Valley.

THE Arlington left Cincinnati for New Orleans on Saturday with 400 tons freight, drawing 4½ feet, and 15 cabin passengers.

THE Mary Houston was sold at Louisville Saturday for $7,850 to Fred. Leib, provision dealer, and C. H. Fincke, liquor dealer.

WE have heard nothing recently about the new boat Captain Darlington was to build for the Pittsburgh and Zanesville trade, to take the place of the Carrie Brooks.

THE Veteran will be off the dock at McKeesport within the next week or two as good as new. She will be continued in the brick yard trade by Captain Geo. D. Laughlin.

THE arrivals since our last report were the Salt Valley, and towboats Whale and Simpson Horner. The Salt Valley was the only departure; she had a good trip both ways.

CAPT. THOS. S. BOYSE's residence, in Cincinnati, was struck by lightning during the storm on Friday evening, tearing a few shingles off the roof, and clipping a limb off one of his shade trees.

THE Exchange and Fannie Tatum are among the first boats due. As will be seen by card, the Exchange is announced to depart for Cincinnati on Thursday. Capt. Wm. Kirker is in command this trip, Capt. Jas. M. having gone home sick.

A CAIRO dispatch, under date of Saturday, says: The Iron Mountain brought 3 barges, containing 800 tons railroad iron, for the Texas Pacific Railroad, which goes over the Cairo, Arkansas and Texas R. R. from here. She goes to St. Louis to-morrow for 3 barges of ore, and on her return will add 3 barges of old rails here for Pittsburgh.

JULY 5, at 11 P. M., a deck hand on the towboat Jos. H. Bigley, when near Cumberland Dam, jumped overboard from the forward end of our tow, the barges going over him. He was not seen after striking the water. On a card in his coat pocket, left on the Bigley, was the name of John Carrell; on another card was the address of S. M. Spinner, Cold Springs Postoffice, Wilkinson County, Miss. He was all this spring a deck hand on the Simpson Horner, and late on the Iron Mountain. He resided in Pittsburgh, Pa. C. H. COCHRAN, Captain steamer Jos. H Bigley.

THE Cincinnati Commercial of Sunday says: The gale of Friday night did not extend beyond Cincinnati. All the arriving packets came in safe and sound. The Ashland is at the foot of Ludlow street, where she will be fully repaired forthwith. It will cost about $2,000 to make the required repairs. The Exchange and Granite State will carry out her freight contracts above here. The fleet of steamers blown from their moorings are all back to the bank where they were laid up. Fortunately, the Champion No. 7 had up steam and caught and safely landed the Sherlock and Longworth hull before they drifted down against the piers of the Newport Bridge.

Drs. Jordan and Davieson

Principals of the Institution of Anatomy, 807 Chestnut street, Philadelphia, Lecturers on Anatomy, Physiology and Science, inform their friends and patients that they have again opened a branch office for the practice of their profession at No. 2 EIGHTH STREET, PITTSBURGH, PA., where one of the firm may be confidentially consulted, more especially in all those cases of diseases and debility, for the treatment of which they are so justly celebrated. It is too well known that hundreds, nay thousands suffer from the effects of early indiscretion and seek in vain for relief, for none but the educated physician who has made these subjects a specialty is likely to succeed in restoring the patient to health and strength. Hours of consultation from 10 A. M. to 2 P. M., and from 5 P. M. to 8 P. M. Sundays from 10 A. M. to 2 P. M. Every case is strictly confidential. d&S

THE TURF.

Races at Friendship Park.

There were two races at Friendship Park yesterday, the first a trot, mile heats, best three in five, to rule, for a purse of one hundred dollars, for which there were the following entered: C. Stemple enters s. m. Jennie Froelich; A. Blume enters b. g. Nelse; Wm. Dawson enters b. g. Canton; J. Pearson enters b. m. Lauretta; M. Wing enters s. m. Mary; J. Eichley enters b. m. Lady Lawrence.

Before the start Mary and Lady Lawrence were withdrawn leaving four to start. Jennie Froelich was the favorite at five to two against Nelse, second choice, the field selling at one and two. The race was won in three straight heats by Nelse, and although he has been working for two or three seasons it is the first race he ever won. Following is a summary of the races:

A. Blume, enter b. g., Nelse	1	1	1
C. Stemple, " s. m., Jennie Froelich	2	2	2
J. Pearson enter b m., Lauretta	3	3	3
Wm Dawson, enter b. g. Canton	4	4	withdrawn
Time	2:45	2:45	2:46

A SCRUB RACE.

The sport of the day was a scrub race, in which there were two entries, Wm. Shaffer's "Jake" and J. Ragan's "Lady R." This was a contest between Fadderland and the shamrock. It was not so much a trial of speed between "Jake" and "Lady R" as a contest between the German and Irish turfmen. The fight as to who should hold the stakes was long and bitter, and it was feared that the race would have to be postponed, but finally the matter was settled by placing the money in the hands of the urbane Smithson, and then a second contest arose as to how the horses should go, Shaffer contending that they should go as they pleased, while Ragan insisted that the race should be to rule. In this Shaffer won, and mounted his nag, while Ragan came to the score in a sulky, and at the word go they both got off, but Shaffer did not get off very fast. Had there been a distance pole anywhere within the last half mile the first heat would have ended the race, but there wasn't and as a consequence the three heats were trotted, all of which were taken by Ragan's horse. The best time made was 3:20.

WILL HE BE BROUGHT?

Mr S. C. Schoyer Makes a Visit to Mr. R. J. Grier—The Latter Wants to Return—He Says He Can and Will Explain All—Efforts to Fetch Him Back to be Made.

About ten days ago Mr. S.C. Schoyer, Jr., one of the attorneys for the stockholders of the Nation Trust Company, left this city on a trip that might be presumed to combine the elements of both business and pleasure. Yesterday afternoon he returned home, and with his reappearance the agitation of the affairs of the Nation Trust Company commences again. During his absence he had a conversation with Robert J. Grier, who is in Canada, relative to the affairs of the institution over which he once presided, and the result of it is that Mr. Schoyer, it is reported, is very forcibly impressed with the importance of having Mr. Grier brought back to this city so that he can divulge information that will assist in disentangling the financial meshes in which the N. T. C. now seems to be so inextricably involved. Mr. Grier expressed to Mr. Schoyer his perfect willingness to return to Pittsburgh and truthfully tell all he knows, at the same time stating that he was fully confident that he could explain everything that now appears to be inexplicable, and could make crooked things straight again. Previous to unburdening himself, however, on the subject Mr. Grier demands that he shall be granted immunity from punishment, and he expects it to be guaranteed him before the places of Pittsburgh that knew him once shall know him again. He does not propose to put himself within the clutches of the law until he is assured of freedom from its penalties. He is not only willing, but anxious to come back to this city, and the well-known energy of Mr. Schoyer is sufficient assurance that every effort will be made to secure him the immunity he demands. It is understood that Mr. Schoyer will at once take the steps necessary to get Mr. Grier back again and elicit his evidence on the knotty points which it is thought he can explain.

It might be further stated that the writer has been informed that Mr. Schoyer took with him certain books and papers of the Trust Company and that the light thrown upon them by Mr. Grier was sufficient to convince the former that if the latter should be brought back it would be for the benefit and to the interest of all concerned.

ALLEGHENY COUNCILS.

Special Meeting of the Select Branch Last Night—The Movement to Offer a Reward for the Coleman Murderer Fails—The Water Supply, &c.

A special meeting of the Select branch of Allegheny Councils was held last evening for the purpose of taking action on the resolution proving for a reward for the apprehension and conviction of the murderer or murderers of August Coleman. Mr. SLACK, Chairman of the Finance Committee, presented their report, with a resolution providing for a reward for the arrest and conviction of the murderer. The report was received.

Mr. MCKELVEY raised the point that if Thomann is proven to be the murderer, the officers who arrested him would get this reward. It seemed to him that it would hardly be right to pay it if such should be the case.

Mr. WELTE opposed the offering of a reward. He thought the city had a force of detectives, and a very smart Chief of Police to attend to such cases as the one under discussion.

Mr. EBERHARDT thought the reward ought to be offered as an inducement to officers outside of the city to work up the case. All knew what an inducement the $10 fee was to the Chief of Police to work up illegal liquor cases, and if a reward was offered the detectives of other cities would take hold of the matter.

Mr. SLACK said that he did not intend to defend the police of Allegheny, but he thought a reward ought to be offered, as the murder was a horrible one and the perpetrator ought to be made suffer the penalty.

The question was then called on the passage of the resolution, and it was lost by a vote of eleven ayes to three nays—Messrs. Cochran, Lindsay, and Welte voting nay. It required twelve votes to pass it.

On motion of Mr. CALLERY, the rules were suspended, in order to take up other business.

Mr. VOEGTLY, Chairman of the Street Committee, presented their report, which was received. A number of ordinances which accompanied it were referred back to be printed. The following printed ordinances were disposed of:

Ordinance for a lateral sewer on an alley parallel with Jackson street, between Marquis alley and Fremont street. Passed.

Ordinance for the grading and paving of Red Oak alley, from Third street to Long alley. Passed.

Ordinance for the regrading and repaving of Race street, formerly Middle alley. Passed.

Ordinance for the payment of $2,434.26 for the grading and paving of Return street from Kilkenbeck street to the water basin. Passed.

Ordinance changing the name of Faulkner alley to Faulkner street. Passed.

Viewer's report on the opening of Superior Run avenue. Confirmed.

Mr. CALLERY presented a petition for the raising of the grade of a street in the Seventh ward. Referred.

The same gentleman presented the report of the Water Committee, accompanied by the various plans considered by them for increasing the water supply in the portions of the city where the supply is not now sufficient to meet the demand. They submitted an ordinance authorizing the Water Committee to proceed and make such arrangements as are necessary to increase the supply of water. The report was received and the ordinance referred back to be printed.

Also, a resolution for the laying of a water main on the Troy Hill road, Gang avenue, and Sassafras and Straub's lanes. Passed.

Mr. DRUM, an ordinance changing the name of Martin alley to Martin street. Referred.

Mr. HEAGY, Chairman of the Police Committee, called up the printed ordinance fixing the pay of the police force as follows: Chief, $1,000; Captain, $900; Lieutenants, $2.45 per day; Patrolmen $2.20 per day. This ordinance makes no change in the salaries now paid. It was passed finally.

The Chairman read a communication from the Board of Managers of the Penitentiary, asking that Councils take action on their petition for permission to construct a sewer from the Penitentiary to the river. Referred.

Mr. HARTMAN, a petition for a plank walk. Referred.

Mr. SLACK, a petition for a sewer drop on the corner of Ackley and Buena Vista streets. Referred.

The Chairman read a communication from H. McCracken for an abatement of taxes. Referred.

Adjourned.

HOT!

The City Mortality During Sunday and Yesterday.

The fierce, terrible, almost unendurable heat of the last three days met with considerable check by the welcome thunder storm that passed over the city shortly before midnight. Pedestrians who were caught out gratefully accepted a good wetting for the sake of the cooling of the atmosphere, and countenances before distorted by lamentations at the sweltering closeness were wreathed in smiles of satis-

The terrible heat was provocative of greater mortality during Sunday and yesterday than had ever been known in the city during the same length of time, except by epidemic. All the returns are not in as yet, but it is supposed that when they are all received they will show that at least fifty persons departed this life within the city limits during the time mentioned. Numberless cases of prostration from heat are reported, and the greater portion of the deaths are attributed to the same cause.

Human beings did not suffer alone either. Horses and cattle were stricken down all over the city. At seven o'clock last evening the Health Board had received notification of the death of five horses from heat during the day, which it was desired that the Fall Master should remove. The fatality among stock in the East Liberty yards was very great, especially among those which arrived during the two days.

John Denny, of No. 75 Pike street, died on Sunday from the effects of sunstroke. His remains were interred yesterday.

Mrs. Grant, a resident of Second avenue, near Soho, was overcome by the heat on Sunday, but yesterday she was much better.

One of the Pleasant Valley car drivers, named Carlisle, fell from his car in an insensible condition, when near the stables in Pleasant Valley, yesterday morning. He was removed to his home near by, and Dr. B. B. Smith summoned. He will probably recover.

Willie Voegtly, son of Mr. N. H. Voegtly, of Allegheny, was rendered insensible by the heat yesterday morning. He was removed to his home and medical aid summoned. Last evening he was improving rapidly.

Yesterday Mr. Jacob Tschudy, while measuring lumber on the top of a pile of boards, was overcome by the heat, and fell to the ground in an insensible condition. He soon recovered sufficient to go to his home.

Four of the workmen in Hailman's stonequarry, opposite Lewis, Olliver & Phillips' mill, in the Ninth ward, Allegheny, were so overcome by the heat yesterday that they were unable to continue their work during the balance of the day.

Two more horses were killed by the heat in Allegheny yesterday.

A domestic in the employ of a family named Metz, corner of Smithfield street and Second avenue, was overcome by the heat about noon yesterday and expired at three o'clock in the afternoon. We could not learn the girl's name.

Twenty-five burial permits were issued in the city yesterday.

A young Irish woman, who had been in the city but three days, and was employed as a domestic in a house near the Oakland car stables, died from sunstroke last evening. The police, from whom the information was obtained, did not know the woman's name.

A driver for Hall & Spear was stricken down on Smithfield street last evening. He was taken to his home and medical aid summoned.

—Ten horses were killed by sunstroke in this city on Sunday.

—Joseph Raab, a German, was overcome by heat Sunday, near Zimmerman's church yard. His recovery is doubtful.

—Conrad Yeagle was overcome with heat on Carson street Sunday and fell over the bank. He was taken to the lock up and from thence to Passavant Hospital.

—Levi Sharp, a track walker on the Cleveland and Pittsburgh railroad, was struck by a train on that road Saturday evening, receiving injuries from which he died in a few minutes.

—On Sunday there arrived at East Liberty stock yard 55 head of dead hogs, 4 head of cattle and 10 head of sheep that perished from heat. Yesterday morning Messrs. Morris & Waixell, of Chicago, lost eleven head of cattle out of seventeen loads from the same cause.

—An Oakland car horse fell exhausted from sunstroke on Saturday as he was about to make the return trip from Oakland to Pittsburgh. The owner at once borrowed all the ice in the saloon opposite the stable, and, enveloping the animal in it, began pumping ice water on him. The horse revived, and was completely restored the same evening.

THE COUNTY HOME.

Reply to the Presentment of the Grand Jury.

(Communicated.)

To the Taxpayers of Allegheny County, and the Allegheny County Home District particularly:

On the 1st instant, an article purporting to be the presentment of the Grand Jury of Allegheny county, at the June session, 1876, appeared in some of the Pittsburgh daily papers, in which it reflects severely upon the management of the "Allegheny County Home." The managers of the Home had determined to treat said article reflecting upon the management of the "Home" as it deserved, with silent contempt, but upon consideration, knowing that a large number of the people of the county who never saw the "Home," or knew anything about its management, would be astonished on reading the article that the Grand Jury had visited the "Home" and called it a filthy concern, when the usual custome was a puff. Hoping, however, that those who read the presentment also read the proceedings in Court relative to the Grand Jury visiting such institutions as the Home. The Directors of the Home having determined, if possible to stop the quarterly visits of the Grand Jury, which were useless to the public, costing each in the jurors' pay, expenses of dinner, &c., about $100, notified the Grand Jury, through the Assistant District Attorney, not to come out, and complained to the Court of Quarter Sessions of this useless waste of public money. We will proceed to say that the Legislature passed an act in 1852, providing for the erection of a house for the employment and support of the poor in the county of Allegheny, sets forth among other things that the Board of Managers shall render an account at least once a year to the Court of Quarter Sessions and Grand Jury, a list of the number and sex of persons maintained and employed in the said house, and shall at all times when thereunto required submit to the inspection and free examination all their books and accounts to such visitors as shall from time to time be appointed by the Court of Quarter Sessions, but in no instance does it say that the Grand Jury shall visit said Home, nor were they appointed as visitors.

Yet it has been the custom of the Grand Jury at every term of Court to visit the County Home. We would not say a word in opposition to their visits if they confined them to once a year. For a number of years the managers of the Home have opposed, and still do oppose the quarterly visits of the Grand Jury. To be put to the trouble and expenses of providing a fine dinner (what they really come for) every three months for men, a majority of whom are composed of the cities, and do not pay one cent of tax to this institution, they do object to.

The Board of Public Charties was established by act of Assembly of 1869 to whom all persons having charge or oversight of the poor in any city or county of this State shall report to them quarterly, by said act, the said Board of Public Charities themselves or their general agent are authorized and required at least once in every two years to visit all charitable and correctional institutions of the State. Their general agent has visited the Allegheny County Home three times during the last three years without giving any notice at what time they would visit, nor did they give notice that they would visit on a certain day and come the day before. On every visit to the Home they have pronounced it among the best institutions in the State. In their annual report to the Legislature they speak thus of the Allegheny County Home. "The House is preserved in good order, the rooms are spacious and airy, sufficiently numerous and commodious. They are adequately and comfortably furnished, more than ordinary attention seems to be given to the wants of the various classes. The general condition of this establishment is more favorable than is usually found. It is conducted in the best manner. The requisite care and attention is exercised over the inmates, cleanliness and comfort are everywhere observed." (To that report we respectfully refer you.)

Now the Board of Public Charities is composed of men who know something about the management of such institutions and upon their decision the Home is willing to stand or fall. Although the Board of the Allegheny County Home have annually reported according to the act of 1852, they now believe that the act of Assembly creating the Board of Public Charites and making it obligatory upon them to report to the Board of Public Charties does away entirely with the report to the court &c., as set forth in the act of 1852. The Directors owing to the notice they had given the Grand Jury to stop a useless expenditure of public money, fully expected to incur their wrath which, as they knew they were right, and were themselves not pensioners on the public funds—receiving each $25 per annum for their services, were not in a condition to sustain. The presentment says "that if this institution (county home) was honestly and efficiently managed as the Allegheny City Home, it would be an honor to the county." We would say that it ill becomes a Grand Jury to talk of honesty when they [illegible] spend a number of days visiting institutions at the expenses of the county and some of them State institutions at that. To our mind if their daily pay was cut off before they made any of their visits (as it should be) not one of these institutions would ever see a Grand Jury. They in their presentment start out with "on our solemen oaths and affirmation," then on your solemn oath &c. did you not, after the proceedings in Court, and previous to your visit to the Home, make up your mind to find fault with everything at the Home (whether right or wrong)? As to the "Filthiness of the Home," as the presentment says, we will say that Tuesday of each week is regular scrub day, as well as other days and parts of days in the week. The most of the lower floors were scrubbed with water, soap and brush, on the evening previous to your visit, as a number of them are on every day excepting Sabbath (and it was not done on account of hearing that the Grand Jury was to pay us a visit) yet you say that they were in a filthy condition. After examining at least forty beds you found one bug, can you say you found more than one, and over it you exulted as much as if you had discovered the North Pole. Unknown to the Jury and to the Director present the Assessor of Collier township was present, and witnessed at least part of your conduct. To him we appeal to say whether it was that of gentlemen.

To show what ignorance even a Grand Jury can display. On the week previous to the visit of the Grand Jury, the Directors of the Home, in return for similar courtesy, had extended an invitation to the Directors of the Homes of the city of Pittsburgh, city of Allegheny, and Westmoreland county, and for mutual consultation, to take dinner at the County Home, and they had responded. Yet your foreman, or his man Friday, with all the assurance imaginable, asked who paid for that picnic that was at the Home last week, as if it was an indictable offense, or any of their business. Another instance of their wisdow: Some of the Jury, who are citizens of one or other of the cities, said: We pay taxes for the support of this institution and we have a right to visit it when we please. Everything seemed to be wrong in their eyes, for when they visited the stables and shades attached, where the farm wagons and farming implements are stored to be in the dry, some one remarked that there was stabling and shades enough for a livery stable. In visiting the female department their bed covering was thrown down in no gentle manner; neither were their remarks to the Matron either gentle or refined. Gentleness, wisdom, judgment and refinement should in all cases characterize the actions of gentlemen composing a Grand Jury. But let prejudice and malice prevail and all the other qualities are lost sight of, which I fear was too much the case in this Grand Jury visit.

Will you on your oaths and affirmations say that it was not the expectation of $2.50 for your day from the county, a free pass over the railroad and a pleasant time generally that prompted your visit to the Home? The presentment also speaks that the clothing of the inmates is not kept clean, that they are not provided with suitable change of clothing. Now, in relation to this: If the Grand Jury understood anything about the inmates of institutions of this kind they would have a very different opinion, than the one they arrived at from their cursory examination. We have a number who are idiotic; also many of them who are of weak minds and the generality of these as well as many others are negligent and careless, not only about their clothing but in everything else, would seemingly rather be dirty than clean and if their clothing were changed every morning they would not be clean at night. Some get change once and some twice a week, others every week, but the presentment speak as if all of the inmates were rational, and that they were easily managed, the officers of the Home having a very easy time of it. But it is a very easy matter for a jury or any other visitor or visitors to express an opinion when only at the Home an hour or two. If their opinion or presentment was based upon a true statement of facts from day in and day out observation it would amount to something, but at the most only having a bird's-eye-view their opinion, their judgment is only made up from it, and is of small importance, compared with the real facts of the case, but why need we multiply words further. The whole matter seems to have been prejudged, at least, that part of the presentment relating to the County Home. One word in regard to discipline. What can any party know of the discipline of an institution, when their stay was so limited as the Grand Jury at the Home.

It is very generally believed that liquor had too much to do with the making up of the presentment. It is currently reported that not less than six or seven bottles of it passed current among them, before leaving; as under the circumstances free liquor could not be expected at the Home. And these are the kind of men who pass judgment on us. We are perfectly willing that the Home and all its surroundings be carefully investigated by competent parties at any time—in fact we desire it.

····The last annual report of the Board of Charities contains the following regarding the Pittsburgh jail: "There can be no use in urging a proper regard for hygienic conditions in such a bedlam. No effort of man or woman could preserve any considerable cleanliness. The brush, water and soap, when vigorously applied, do ordinarily effect much. They are impotent here. Ordinary means of ventilation are in use, with what effect cannot be ascertained by entering a cell, especially when the mercury rises in Fahrenheit to 85°. Forced ventilation, if worked by a fifty horse power, would be useless. To dissipate the foul exhalations constantly emanating from the throats and bodies of nearly two hundred vagabonds shut up in a prison arranged as this is, is simply impossible."

CHAMBER OF COMMERCE.

Report of the Committee on Wire Gauge—Obstructing the River.

The Board of Directors of the Chamber of Commerce held a regular meeting yesterday afternoon, Capt. Dravo presiding and Mr. J. Grattan Murphy acting as Secretary.

Capt. Stockdale, from the Committee on Wire Gauge, read the following report:

PITTSBURGH, July 10, 1876.

To the Chamber of Commerce of Pittsburgh, Penn'a:

Your committee appointed to examine into and report in regard to memorializing Congress on the adoption of a standard wire gauge, would respectfully submit the following:

For many years past all classes of manufacturers, contractors and buyers of metals usually made or sold by thickness determined by wire gauge, have felt the great need of the adoption of a standard gauge, and one which was made standard by legal enactment. There are about thirteen known gauges, and with perhaps but one exception none of them are constructed on any defined system.

As an example of the irregularity of increase of thickness by number of wire gauge, we will take the "Birmingham" gauge, which is most generally used by our iron manufacturers here.

No. 24 sheet iron weighs .95 pounds per square foot.

No. 23 sheet iron weighs .99 pounds per square foot. Increase over No. 24, .04 pounds.

No. 22 sheet iron weighs 1.15 pounds per square foot. Increase over No. 23, .16 pounds.

No. 21 sheet iron weighs 1.32 pounds per square foot. Increase over No. 22, .17 pounds.

No. 20 sheet iron weighs 1.41 pounds per square foot. Increase over No. 21, .09 pounds.

No. 19 sheet iron weighs 1.70 pounds per square foot. Increase over No. 20, .29 pounds.

Aside from the irregularity of increase of size in a single gauge, the different gauges vary from ten to thirty per cent. in corresponding numbers.

Many parties not being aware of this fail to specify in their contracts the name of gauge required, or the weight per foot, and thus the door is opened to a kind of dishonesty the law does not reach.

A number of years ago the firm of Messrs. J. R. Brown & Sharpe, (now Darling, Brown & Sharpe) of Providence, Rhode Island, designed a new guage on very simple principles, the thickness of each number increasing in "geometrical progression." This gauge, which they named "Standard Wire Gauge," has been adopted as the standard by the brass manufacturers of this country. A meeting of the wire manufacturers was held at the Astor House, New York, in 1864, at which a resolution was passed adopting the same gauge as their standard, but the meeting failing to agree on other matters appertaining to their trade, the whole fell through.

Some of our manufacturers are not in favor of any gauge being made standard except those in use in their respective works, but it must be remembered that the making of any particular gauge a legal standard does not take away the right of private contract. It matters but little what gauge the Government may adopt, but it is a matter of great importance that some one should be made a legal standard, on which contracts could be enforced in the absence of special agreements as to which gauge is intended.

At the same time we think best that when a standard is adopted it should be one constructed on a perfect system, and up to this time we believe the only one so constructed is the "Standard Wire Gauge," manufactured by Messrs. Darling, Brown & Sharpe, and we would recommend that Congress be memorialized to adopt it as the legal standard.

The same need of a standard wire gauge has been long felt in England, and we hope the adoption of one by this country may be followed by similar action on the part of the British authorities.

Whether or not, we think the very small proportion of iron now imported should not be permitted to interfere with the adoption of a great improvement, which will be greatly beneficial to every trade or buyer in which any kind of goods are sold or contracted for by wire gauge.

J. T. STOCKDALE,
GEO. W. HAILMAN,
O. P. SCAIFE,
Committee.

The report was accepted and the committee discharged.

Capt. Dravo suggested that in view of the early adjournment of Congress that it would be perhaps better to retain the memorial until the convening of the next Congress.

Other gentlemen thought it would be better to send the paper immediately, and it was so directed.

Mr. Siebeneck moved that a copy of the report be sent to each Chamber of Commerce in the country with a request to act upon it. Adopted.

The report was then referred to the original Committee on Wire Gauge to be placed in the form of a memorial, and sent to Congress.

Complaint being made that the stock reports are not received or posted as soon as in other places in the city, the Superintendent was instructed to inquire into the matter, and have it rectified if the facts are as stated.

A communication was received from the Hall Safe & Lock Company withdrawing from the Chamber. They have been compelled by freight discriminations to remove their office from this city, they being able to ship from Cincinnati to eastern cities more cheaply than from Pittsburgh. Mr. Marvin moved that a statement of the case be forwarded to Mr. Hopkins at Washington, immediately, to be used in evidence in the present investigation into freight discriminations now in progress in that city. Carried.

Complaint having been made that some parties engaged in making cheap coke are obstructing the Monongahela river below the first dam by throwing in cinders, the matter was referred to the Committee on Rivers and Harbors for examination and report. It is said the obstruction is so serious that it will now take a twelve foot stage of water to let down coal boats.

Adjourned.

The "Housekeeper" of Our Health.

The liver is the great depurating or blood cleansing organ of the system. Set the great housekeeper of our health at work, and the foul corruptions which gender in the blood and rot out, as it were, the machinery of life, are gradually expelled from the system. For this purpose Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, with small daily doses of Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Purgative Pellets are pre-eminently the articles needed. They cure every kind of humor from the worst scrofula to the common pimple, blotch or eruption. Great eating ulcers kindly heal under their mighty curative influences. Virulent blood poisons that lurk in the system are by them robbed of their terrors, and by their persevering and somewhat protracted use the most tainted system may be completely renovated and built up anew. Enlarged glands, tumors and swellings dwindle away and disappear under the influence of their great resolvents. Sold by all dealers in medicines.

"Claude, a child about three years old, was greatly afflicted with sores on his legs and feet, so that he could not wear his shoes and stockings. Had a great deal of trouble with him. Had tried many remedies ineffectually. At last we tried the Golden Medical Discovery, and in about three weeks he was entirely cured, his sores were all healed, and health much improved.

Respectfully yours. J. W. BOYER,
Vermillion, Edgar Co., Ill. Jan. 29th 1875."

The Express Robbery.

ST. LOUIS, July 10.—Information has been received from General Montgomery that the robbers separated Saturday night in the bed of a stream some three miles from Florence, and since then the trail has not been discovered. At last accounts the belief was that they were in the brush several miles south of Florence and surrounded by several parties who were closely watching all outlets. The Osage river is very high, and can only be crossed at the ferries. These are all guarded by vigilant and well-armed parties, and it is not believed the robbers can get away, at least not without a fight. General Montgomery will stay on the scout as long as there is the slightest possibility of capturing the outlaws. The express and railroad companies are doing everything in their power to effect the capture of the robbers, and the citizens throughout the whole country are on the alert and rendering all the assistance possible.

The improvements consist of a two story frame dwelling, with two rooms, a passage and dressing room below, three rooms and a passage above, two basement rooms admirably adapted for dining room and cook room, with convenient closets. The house has two porches, two brick chimneys, with six fire places. There is a frame kitchen with two rooms below and two above; a smoke house, ice house, dairy, wood house, green-house and well of good water in the yard. Near by a good stable, cow house, corn house, carriage house and tobacco barns. The yard is embellished with shade trees and shrubbery. The yard, garden and lots are enclosed; some of the lots well set in grass and clover, the garden highly improved and very productive. Halifax C.
